RECEIVES HIS LAST PRISON SENTENCE

Minneapolis, Minn., March 1.—(U.P.)—Olaf Martin, 47, received his last prison sentence late yesterday.

"I have nothing to say. I knew it was coming," he replied steadily to District Judge Frank E. Reed in Hennepin county district court when sentenced to life imprisonment in Stillwater.

Martin, whose prison record reaches back to the time he was 10 years old was the second person in the state to be given the maximum sentence of the Minnesota Baumes law. It calls for a life term after three previous convections.

Pleading guilty to the charge of stealing $150 in jewelry from the home of Louis Ness, Martin awaited the inevitable sentence. Through his own admission, he has committed between 50 and 60 crimes in Minneapolis. Those convections which brought him under the jurisdiction of the Baumes law were a second degree grand larceny conviction in Duluth, 1901; a conviction on the same charge in Ramsey county in 1904, and a petty larceny conviction in 1906.

Will H. Hays Says Sinclair Gave $160,000 to Aid Wiping Out G.O.P. Campaign Deficit of '21

TESTIFIES AT TEAPOT DOME SENATE HEARING

SAID HE DID NOT KNOW IF THEY WERE CONTINENTAL TRADING CO. BONDS

NO RECORD WAS KEPT OF SERIAL NUMBERS OF THE BONDS

Washington, March 1.—(UP)—Harry Sinclair, indicted oil magnate, advanced $260,000 in government bonds to help pay off the republican campaign deficit of 1921, Will H. Hays, former chairman of the republican national committee, revealed to the senate Teapot Dome committee today.

Of this amount, Hays said he gave $100,000 back to Sinclair later. The difference of $160,000 was Sinclair's personal campaign contribution, he said.

Hays said he did not know whether the bonds were those of the mysterious Continental Trading Co. He said he had never heard of the Continental concern until recently, and that no record was kept of the serial numbers of the bonds.

Sen. Walsh of Montana has said that the committee traced $75,000 of Continental bonds to the republican national committee. After outlining the efforts to liquidate the $1,200,000 campaign deficit, Hays said in a written statement to the committee:

"Among those to whom I appealed for contributions was Harry F. Sinclair. I explained the situation to Sinclair, told him of the assistance which had been given by others, assured him that we would be able to obtain the requisite funds if we could have a certain amount of time and asked him if, before he sailed for Europe, he could help us to tide over the period.

"He replied that he would make a personal contribution which he thought should not exceed $75,000. He also said he would turn over to us approximately $185,000 in government bonds in addition to his contribution for such use as might become necessary upon my assurance that he would be repaid the total amount advanced in excess of the $75,000 contribution.

"Both the $75,000 and the $185,000 were, I think, in government bands.

"A portion of the $185,000 of government bonds was used as hereinafter stated and this advancement along with the contributions by many others enabled the treasurer to announce to the committee at the December meeting that the indebtedness was provided for.

"So far as I know no record was made of the numbers of those bonds or even of their particular issue.

"Seventy-five thousand dollars of the bonds constituting Mr. Sinclair's personal contribution were applied on the committee's indebtedness to Empire Trust Co., through the chairman of its board, General T. Coleman Dupont.

"Fifty thousand dollars of the original $185,000 received from Sinclair were returned by me to Sinclair.

"Of the remaining $135,000, I delivered to John T. Pratt of New York to the best of my recollection, $50,000 at about which time he placed in the hands of committee $50,000 in addition to the amounts he previously contributed. Later I asked Pratt to add that sum to his previous contribution.

"To this he agreed and delivered to me $50,000 in government bonds but I had no knowledge as to whether they were the same bonds I had previously delivered to him. These bonds in any case were given by me to Sinclair. Of the approximately $85,000 remaining, I delivered $25,000 to Sec. John W. Weeks of Boston (late secretary of war), to be used by him in his efforts to raise money for the deficit and they were used by him for that purpose.

"The approximately $60,000 remaining I delivered to Fred W. Upham of Chicago for the same purpose and they were used by him for that purpose.

"Consequently I lacked approximately $85,000 with which to repay Sinclair the entire $185,000. I felt bound to reimburse Sinclair in full and I did so, hoping at the same time that I could get some further help later from others but this did not materialize.

"I had suffered financial losses of which Sinclair knew. He did not feel that I should bear this burden personally and he voluntarily returned the $85,000 of securities which I had caused to be delivered to him.

"These securities did not comprise any of the government bonds originally delivered by Sinclair to me. The securities which he returned were the identical securities which I sent to him.

"I simply had not succeeded in raising the entire amount and made it up personally with securities which bore no relation whatever to the bonds with which the committee is now concerned.

"This last transaction had not taken place when I testified before this committee in 1924 that according to my recollection Sinclair's contribution in making up the deficit did not exceed $75,000. But after that time, for the reasons already mentioned, he assumed the $85,000, which I had proffered to make good my assurance to him that he would be reimbursed in full.

"He therefore should not be credited with a personal contribution of $75,000 and an additional $85,000 which he felt I ought not be called on to pay."

NAVY HOLDS GRIMLY TO HOPE TO FIND FLIERS

3 LOST MEN LAST SEEN WHEN HOPPING OFF FROM HAMPTON ROADS, VA.

Washington, March 1.—(UP)—The navy department held grimly today to a fading hope of finding three aviators who hopped off from Hampton Roads, Va., at 2 A. M. on Monday for Annapolis, Md., and were not heard from again.

Rainy weather did not prevent airplanes from renewing the hunt which yesterday was joined by 43 planes and two blimps, the largest aerial searching party ever organized in this country.

Mrs. Hugo Schmidt of Brooklyn, N. Y., wife of one of the lost airmen, notified the navy she would give $1,000 to the finder of the men, their bodies, or their amphibian plane.

UNIDENTIFIED BANDIT IS SHOT AND KILLED

2 OTHERS ROUTED BY GARAGE PROPRIETOR AT LAKE ELMO

ARNOLD NIPPOLT, GARAGE MAN, RECOVERS CAR STOLEN FROM HIM

Lake Elmo, Minn., March 1.—(UP)—An unidentified bandit was shot and killed and two others were routed by a garage proprietor here early today after they had entered the garage, stolen an automobile and after driving away, returned for other loot.

The dead man was not identified. He apparently was about 35 years old.

Arnold Nippolt, garage proprietor, heard the door of his garage being forced open shortly after 1 o'clock. He investigated and found that a large automobile stored there had been stolen.

Just as Nippolt was returning to his home he heard an automobile approaching. Returning to the garage he armed himself with a rifle.

The automobile stopped in front of the building and three men alighted. Nippolt opened fire. One of the men screamed and fell. A second fled in the darkness, while the third leaped into the stolen automobile and made his escape.

Two bullets struck the man found dead in a snowbank. They were within four inches of each other near the heart.

Immediately after the shooting, Nippolt called the St. Paul police and sheriff at Stillwater, and a search for the other two men was instituted. Police also sought a fourth member of the bandit gang believed to have driven the trio to Lake Elmo and left them.

MARINES MARCH INTO MACHINE GUN NEST GROUP

PATROL WAS IN COMMAND OF LIEUTENANT EDWARD F. O'DAY

TOTAL OF MARINE DEATHS SINCE U. S. OCCUPATION STARTED, NOW 21

Managua, Nicaragua, March 1.—(UP)—The densely wooded regions of the Neuva Segova country today protected General Augustino Sandino, rebel leader, whose most recent ambushing attack resulted in the deaths of five United States marines and injury to eight others.

The marine casualties occurred on Monday when a patrol, under command of Lieut. Edward F. O'Day, marched into a rebel machine gun nest.

This brought the total of marine deaths, since United States' occupation started, to 21.

The death list announced today, included:

Private John C. Pump, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Private Albert Schlauch, Jamestown, N. D.

Private George E. Robbins, San Antonio, Texas.

Corporal Cicero D. Austin, Crockett, Texas.

Private Curtis J. Mott, Trenton, Wash.

The wounded:

Private Lem C. Davis, shot in the shoulder. His condition was said to be serious.

Sergeant Wilbourn O. Christian, Northport, Ala.

Sergeant Charles Hishman, Longmire, Wash.

Private Lewis E. Ballard, Troy, N. Y.

Private Raymond B. Carter, Payson, Utah.

Private Peter C. Crum, Omaha, Neb.

Private Linton C. Naynard, Ranger, Texas.

Private Clarence E. Phelps, Portland, Colo.

Pump, Schlauch and Robbins were killed instantly. The other two men died Tuesday of wounds.

The spot selected for the ambushing attack was ideal for the Sandino strategy. It was near a rancho known as Daraila, midway between Ocotal and Jinotega. Dense bush surrounded the location.

Lieutenant O'Day's column, including 36 men and 85 animals, had just completed accompanying a pack train to Conedga. They were without the heavy pack load on the return journey.

Near the rancho the surprise attack started. Resorting to his favorite strategy, Sandino's men directed a deadly fire of machine guns which had been set in ambush. The fire raked the ranks of the marines and momentarily threw them off guard.

Before the marines could recover from the surprise of the attack, the Sandino forces dismounted their guns and retreated into the heavily wooded country.

It was the greatest loss received by the marine forces since December 30 when five marines were killed and more than 20 injured at Quilali, when the Sandino forces staged a surprise attack. At that time the Sandino raiders were repulsed with heavy casualties.

Information here was uncertain whether any of the Sandinistas were killed in the Monday attack.

For weeks the marine patrols have been accompanying pack trains into the Neuvo Segova district in order to lay in supplies to tide over the rainy period when many of the roads through the region are inaccessible.

Native sources today reported that General Sandino was running low on ammunition and that he would not engage in any open warfare with the marines, preferring to use his remaining ammunition in brief surprise attacks.

The ambushing attack Monday set at rest reports that General Sandino was abandoning the Nueva Segova district. Two rebels were captured recently and said that Sandino had planned to abandon his frontier. Their statements were discounted in the belief they had been placed for capture in order to give misleading statements to the United States marine officers.

I explained the situation to Sinclair, told him of the assistance which had been given by others, assured him that we would be able to obtain the requisite funds if we could have a certain amount of time and asked him if, before he sailed for Europe, he could help us to tide over the period.

"He replied that he would make a personal contribution which he thought should not exceed $75,000. He also said he would turn over to us approximately $185,000 in government bonds in addition to his contribution for such use as might become necessary upon my assurance that he would be repaid the total amount advanced in excess of the $75,000 contribution.

"Both the $75,000 and the $185,000 were, I think, in government bands.

"A portion of the $185,000 of government bonds was used as hereinafter stated and this advancement along with the contributions by many others enabled the treasurer to announce to the committee at the December meeting that the indebtedness was provided for.

"So far as I know no record was made of the numbers of those bonds or even of their particular issue.

"Seventy-five thousand dollars of the bonds constituting Mr. Sinclair's personal contribution were applied on the committee's indebtedness to Empire Trust Co., through the chairman of its board, General T. Coleman Dupont.

"Fifty thousand dollars of the original $185,000 received from Sinclair were returned by me to Sinclair.

"Of the remaining $135,000, I delivered to John T. Pratt of New York to the best of my recollection, $50,000 at about which time he placed in the hands of committee $50,000 in addition to the amounts he previously contributed. Later I asked Pratt to add that sum to his previous contribution.

"To this he agreed and delivered to me $50,000 in government bonds but I had no knowledge as to whether they were the same bonds I had previously delivered to him. These bonds in any case were given by me to Sinclair. Of the approximately $85,000 remaining, I delivered $25,000 to Sec. John W. Weeks of Boston (late secretary of war), to be used by him in his efforts to raise money for the deficit and they were used by him for that purpose.

"The approximately $60,000 remaining I delivered to Fred W. Upham of Chicago for the same purpose and they were used by him for that purpose.

"Consequently I lacked approximately $85,000 with which to repay Sinclair the entire $185,000. I felt bound to reimburse Sinclair in full and I did so, hoping at the same time that I could get some further help later from others but this did not materialize.

"I had suffered financial losses of which Sinclair knew. He did not feel that I should bear this burden personally and he voluntarily returned the $85,000 of securities which I had caused to be delivered to him.

"These securities did not comprise any of the government bonds originally delivered by Sinclair to me. The securities which he returned were the identical securities which I sent to him.

"I simply had not succeeded in raising the entire amount and made it up personally with securities which bore no relation whatever to the bonds with which the committee is now concerned.

"This last transaction had not taken place when I testified before this committee in 1924 that according to my recollection Sinclair's contribution in making up the deficit did not exceed $75,000. But after that time, for the reasons already mentioned, he assumed the $85,000, which I had proffered to make good my assurance to him that he would be reimbursed in full.

"He therefore should not be credited with a personal contribution of $75,000 and an additional $85,000 which he felt I ought not be called on to pay."

NAVY HOLDS GRIMLY TO HOPE TO FIND FLIERS

3 LOST MEN LAST SEEN WHEN HOPPING OFF FROM HAMPTON ROADS, VA.

43 PLANES AND 2 BLIMPS, LARGER AERIAL SEARCHING PARTY OUT

Washington, March 1.—(UP)—The navy department held grimly today to a fading hope of finding three aviators who hopped off from Hampton Roads, Va., at 2 A. M. on Monday for Annapolis, Md., and were not heard from again.

Rainy weather did not prevent airplanes from renewing the hunt which yesterday was joined by 43 planes and two blimps, the largest aerial searching party ever organized in this country.

Mrs. Hugo Schmidt of Brooklyn, N. Y., wife of one of the lost airmen, notified the navy she would give $1,000 to the finder of the men, their bodies, or their amphibian plane.

UNIDENTIFIED BANDIT IS SHOT AND KILLED

ARNOLD NIPPOLT, GARAGE MAN, RECOVERS CAR STOLEN FROM HIM

Lake Elmo, Minn., March 1.—(UP)—An unidentified bandit was shot and killed and two others were routed by a garage proprietor here early today after they had entered the garage, stolen an automobile and after driving away, returned for other loot.

The dead man was not identified. He apparently was about 35 years old.

Arnold Nippolt, garage proprietor, heard the door of his garage being forced open shortly after 1 o'clock. He investigated and found that a large automobile stored there had been stolen.

Just as Nippolt was returning to his home he heard an automobile approaching. Returning to the garage he armed himself with a rifle.

The automobile stopped in front of the building and three men alighted. Nippolt opened fire. One of the men screamed and fell. A second fled in the darkness, while the third leaped into the stolen automobile and made his escape.

Two bullets struck the man found dead in a snowbank. They were within four inches of each other near the heart.

Immediately after the shooting, Nippolt called the St. Paul police and sheriff at Stillwater, and a search for the other two men was instituted. Police also sought a fourth member of the bandit gang believed to have driven the trio to Lake Elmo and left them.

Rochester, Minn., March 1.—(U.P.)—Residents of Rochester have decided that someone other than J. F. "Fat" Thompson, taxicab driver and aspirant to the office of mayor, will rule the destinies of the city.

At the primary election here Tuesday, Thompson ran a poor third despite a vigorous campaign which it is believed brought out a record vote.

In his closing campaign speech Monday the cab driver promised that if he were chosen mayor he would give "a fair deal to school children, better care of lives and morals of children and proper consideration for the rights of their mothers."

The result of the vote for mayor was W. M. Weeks, insumbent, 1,621; Fred Haase, 1,361; Thompson, 290 and William Friedell, 258.

Nicholich was sentenced in Dakota county court by District Judge W. A. Schultz late Wednesday after a jury deliberated six hours and found him guilty of first degree murder.

Frazer was shot and killed when he entered Nicholich's home to confiscate coal which had been ordered seized when liquor was found on the premises.

Nicholich pleaded self-defense and also claimed that he shot Frazer in defense of his home.

MARINES MARCH INTO MACHINE GUN NEST GROUP

PATROL WAS IN COMMAND OF LIEUTENANT EDWARD F. O'DAY

TOTAL OF MARINE DEATHS SINCE U. S. OCCUPATION STARTED, NOW 21

Managua, Nicaragua, March 1.—(UP)—The densely wooded regions of the Neuva Segova country today protected General Augustino Sandino, rebel leader, whose most recent ambushing attack resulted in the deaths of five United States marines and injury to eight others.

The marine casualties occurred on Monday when a patrol, under command of Lieut. Edward F. O'Day, marched into a rebel machine gun nest.

This brought the total of marine deaths, since United States' occupation started, to 21.

The death list announced today, included:

Private John C. Pump, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Private Albert Schlauch, Jamestown, N. D.

Private George E. Robbins, San Antonio, Texas.

Corporal Cicero D. Austin, Crockett, Texas.

Private Curtis J. Mott, Trenton, Wash.

The wounded:

Private Lem C. Davis, shot in the shoulder. His condition was said to be serious.

Sergeant Wilbourn O. Christian, Northport, Ala.

Sergeant Charles Hishman, Longmire, Wash.

Private Lewis E. Ballard, Troy, N. Y.

Prviate Raymond B. Carter, Payson, Utah.

Private Peter C. Crum, Omaha, Neb.

Private Linton C. Naynard, Ranger, Texas.

Private Clarence E. Phelps, Portland, Colo.

Pump, Schlauch and Robbins were killed instantly. The other two men died Tuesday of wounds.

The spot selected for the ambushing attack was ideal for the Sandino strategy. It was near a rancho known as Daraila, midway between Ocotal and Jinotega. Dense bush surrounded the location.

Lieutenant O'Day's column, including 36 men and 85 animals, had just completed accompanying a pack train to Conedga. They were without the heavy pack load on the return journey.

Near the rancho the surprise attack started. Resorting to his favorite strategy, Sandino's men directed a deadly fire of machine guns which had been set in ambush. The fire raked the ranks of the marines and momentarily threw them off guard.

Before the marines could recover from the surprise of the attack, the Sandino forces dismounted their guns and retreated into the heavily wooded country.

It was the greatest loss received by the marine forces since December 30 when five marines were killed and more than 20 injured at Quilali, when the Sandino forces staged a surprise attack. At that time the Sandino raiders were repulsed with heavy casualties.

Information here was uncertain whether any of the Sandinistas were killed in the Monday attack.

For weeks the marine patrols have been accompanying pack trains into the Neuvo Segova district in order to lay in supplies to tide over the rainy period when many of the roads through the region are inaccessible.

Native sources today reported that General Sandino was running low on ammunition and that he would not engage in any open warfare with the marines, preferring to use his remaining ammunition in brief surprise attacks.

The ambushing attack Monday set at rest reports that General Sandino was abandoning the Nueva Segova district. Two rebels were captured recently and said that Sandino had planned to abandon his frontier. Their statements were discounted in the belief they had been placed for capture in order to give misleading statements to the United States marine officers.

NAVY DIRIGIBLE MAY MAKE SHORT FLIGHTS TODAY

Washington, March 1.—(U.P.)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles remained moored overnight to the naval tender Patoka at Guanacayabo Bay, Cuba, and today was expected to make a series of short flights over the island, naval headquarters said.

Reports of adverse weather at Lakehurst, N. J., the dirigible's home base, caused Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl to postpone start of the 1300-mile flight from Cuba to Lakehurst, originally planned for yesterday afternoon.

The Los Angeles flew to Cuba yesterday from the Panama Canal Zone, to which it had made a nonstop flight from Lakehurst Sunday and Monday.

VARIOUS KINDS OF WEATHER FEATURE MARCH OPENING

(By United Press)

Whether March entered Minnesota in the form of an frate lamb or a tame lion was a matter of conjecture.

Snow flurries in southern and central sections of the state may have been indicative of lamb fleece. Yet the chill wind accompanying the snow probably was anything but lamb-like, and hardly roaring enough to seem lion-like.

Weather prognosticators contended themselves with guesses, relying on March 31 to settle the argument.

Not much change in temperature was predicted by the weather bureau.

Refused to Pay Rent

In United States politics the "Anti-Rent" party refers to a party in the state of New York which had its origin in dissatisfaction among the tenants under the patroon system in the eastern part of the state. The tenants refused to pay rent in 1839, resisted force, and a few years later carried their opposition into politics. The matter was settled by a compromise in 1850.

One of our friends thinks two can live as cheaply as one, but not as quietly.

Sometimes the pessimist is the fellow who backed an optimist.

Any town is rotten to the man whose name doesn't mean anything on the dotted line.

"Does your wife pick all your suits for you?"

"No, just the pockets."

Mothers, we can tell you how to prevent the children from making finger marks on the wall paper. Just hang the paper on the ceiling.

Teacher—"Johnny, what great change occurred during the World War?"

Johnny — "Pa bought Ma a new washboard.

A hand carved desk sold in New York the other day for $4,600. And we'll bet you can find dozens of them in our school rooms right here in Brainerd.

Heard in one of our schools.

Teacher: "Who is Frank B. Kellogg?"

Bright Pupil: "Secretary of State."

Teacher: "What does he do?"

Pupil (not so bright): "Makes Corn Flakes."

Our dentist friend, Dr. Erickson, says that golf is what letter carrying, ditch digging and carpet beating would be if those three tasks had to be performed on the same hot afternoon in short pants and colored socks by gouty looking gentlemen who required a different implement for every mood.

We heard about a certain young bride over at Staples who refused to buy any new clothes until her husband finished the last installment on the engagement ring. We call that genuine devotion.

NAVY DIRIGIBLE MAY MAKE SHORT FLIGHTS TODAY

Washington, March 1.—(U.P.)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles remained moored overnight to the naval tender Patoka at Guanacayabo Bay, Cuba, and today was expected to make a series of short flights over the island, naval headquarters said.

Reports of adverse weather at Lakehurst, N. J., the dirigible's home base, caused Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl to postpone start of the 1300-mile flight from Cuba to Lakehurst, originally planned for yesterday afternoon.

The Los Angeles flew to Cuba yesterday from the Panama Canal Zone, to whcih it had made a nonstop flight from Lakehurst Sunday and Monday.

VARIOUS KINDS OF WEATHER FEATURE MARCH OPENING

(By United Press)

Whether March entered Minnesota in the form of an irate lamb or a tame lion was a matter of conjecture.

Snow flurries in southern and central sections of the state may have been indicative of lamb fleece. Yet the chill wind accompanying the snow probably was anything but lamb-like, and hardly roaring enough to seem lion-like.

Weather prognosticators contended themselves with guesses, relying on March 31 to settle the argument.

Not much change in temperature was predicted by the weather bureau.

W. C. T. U. Meeting

The W. C. T. U. will meet Friday, March 2, at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. John Zander, 318 Third Avenue N. E. Mrs. Leitner will assist in entertaining. This is dues paying month and all should be in at this meeting. A good attendance is expected as visitors are always welcome.

Refused to Pay Rent

In United States politics the "Anti-Rent" party refers to a party in the state of New York which had its origin in dissatisfaction among the tenants under the patroon system in the eastern part of the state. The tenants refused to pay rent in 1839, resisted force, and a few years later carried their opposition into politics. The matter was settled by a compromise in 1850.

One of our friends thinks two can live as cheaply as one, but not as quietly.

Sometimes the pessimist is the fellow who backed an optimist.

Any town is rotten to the man whose name doesn't mean anything on the dotted line.

"Does your wife pick all your suits for you?"

"No, just the pockets."

Mothers, we can tell you how to prevent the children from making finger marks on the wall paper. Just hang the paper on the ceiling.

Johnny — "Pa bought Ma a new washboard.

A hand carved desk sold in New York the other day for $4,600. And we'll bet you can find dozens of them in our school rooms right here in Brainerd.

Heard in one of our schools.

Teacher: "Who is Frank B. Keilogg?"

Bright Pupil: "Secretary of State."

Teacher: "What does he do?"

Pupil (not so bright): "Makes Corn Flakes."

Our dentist friend, Dr. Erickson, says that golf is what letter carrying, ditch digging and carpet beating would be if those three tasks had to be performed on the same hot afternoon in short pants and colored socks by gouty looking gentlemen who required a different implement for every mood.

We heard about a certain young bride over at Staples who refused to buy any new clothes until her husband finished the last installment on the engagement ring. We call that genuine devotion.

Has Your Lover Will-Power?

that I can

ate my time

Firm, Straight Lines to Right, Will-Power.

The will is the thing! It means courage of conviction, tenacity and decision. When you find his or her letter in the mail this morning read it the second time with a view to discovering the basic, invaluable quality.

Will-power is shown in the writing by such signs as vertical writing, firm looking writing, terminals that look like those little checks a bank clerk makes in going over your list of deposits, and t bars running from the t in one word to the t in the following word. Also high t bars.

The longer the t bar and the longer the terminals at the end of the word the greater the vision of the writer and the greater the will.

When the t bars are short and heavy and you can see where the pen has been pressed down at the end of each word we will find a domineering will—one that will force itself and others in fits and starts.

The accurate placement of i dots and the appearance of neatness in the writing indicate will on the part of the writer.

Writing resembling that called a good "business hand" with the above signs existing can safely be accredited to one having a firm hold on himself—a person with a fine will.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied.

CRIPPLED BADLY WITH RHEUMATISM!

Could Hardly Get Around

"Working in a damp place gave me rheumatism so badly I could hardly get around. My joints and knuckles were swollen badly and every muscle in my body seemed to ache. I tried 'St. Jacob's Oil' and got relief almost instantly. Today, thanks to that wonderful oil, I work eight hours a day in all kinds of weather without a bit of trouble."

Good old "St. Jacob's Oil" certainly does knock the pains and aches of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuritis, and Neuralgia. It penetrates directly to the affected parts and draws out all the pain and misery, and it doesn't burn the skin. Just try a small trial bottle which you can get from your druggist.

LIVE STOCK

SELLING CORN AS PORK IS FAVORED

At present prices of hogs and corn, the farmer who speculates in hog feeding will make little money, but the man who has the hogs and who has raised corn enough to feed them can make money by selling his corn as pork.

Records carefully kept on 2,276 head of hogs fed by farmers from January first to July first of this year show that these animals were sold for $48,904.97. The actual net profit on these hogs was $11,687.28 which was a return of 31 per cent on the investment. Of course, these animals were fed according to demonstration methods advocated by the county agents and swine extension workers of North Carolina State college. Both the farmers doing the feeding and the county agents who helped, kept careful records.

The figures show further that the corn fed to these hogs was sold for $1.62 per bushel. The hogs sold for an average price of $11.58 per hundred pounds and netted the growers $10.89 on the farm. The total dockage for soft and oily condition amounted to only $56.75.

Indications are now, states W. W Shay, swine extension specialist, that hogs will return very little over the market price for corn but by sticking to the system which has now been successfully established by many growers, the owner will be making money and at the same time, he will hold his machine in readiness to convert the corn crop of 1928 into pork at a good price. There is certain to be a heavy crop of corn planted next spring because of the shortage that will probably exist this winter. If the season is favorable to corn growing next year, there will be a large crop of cheap corn. In the meantime there will be a shortage of hogs, due to lack of feed this winter. Few hogs and much corn, mean a profit to the man who has both.

Therefore, Mr. Shay believes that the man who is established in the hog feeding game, should make his plans now for the year 1928.

Preventable Separator Losses Total Large Sum

What is the annual loss to dairymen from faulty separation of cream from the milk? Unless the dairyman is one who feels that a certain amount of whole milk should be fed to the hogs or chickens, how much butterfat can be considered wasted because it is fed along with the skim milk to these farm animals?

During a single month Iowa cow testers reported that the preventable losses through poor separation in 79 associations totaled $493.30. The fact that this loss is preventable is reason enough for being interested in the matter, disregarding the fact that the loss amounts to approximately $6,000 annually to members of the Iowa cow testing associations.

Temporary mishaps in separator operation may cause a slight preventable loss, but, on the whole, the fault usually rests with the separator. A clean separator that is set level, is properly oiled and run at the correct and uniform speed will get the butterfat from the milk as it should and will not contribute to this annual waste.

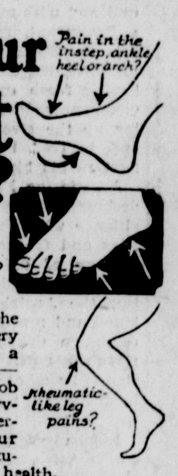

MICKIE SAYS

Happy Hymns

Hymns are meant to be offerings of objective praise, not expressions of personal self-abasement. The true hymn-singer is very like the lark. He cannot help singing, he is so glad. Children are our excellent exemplars in this. They are always ready to give thanks, melodiously. Our hymn-books should provide an outlet for this urge, not divert it into channels less spontaneous.—London Daily Telegraph.

JOHN CARLSON & SON

Winter Protection for Dairy Cows Important

When the cold rains, sleets and snows of winter bother the dairyman, barn roofs prove to be cheaper shelters for dairy cows than the backs of animals. Some classes of stock can be wintered very satisfactorily out of doors in stormy weather, but exposure to such weather will immediately cause the dairy cow to decrease her milk flow. In addition to a decreased milk flow the cow will be required to consume more feed in order to maintain her body heat, both resulting in increased feed consumption in proportion to the amount of milk received.

Dairy Notes

Cow-testing associations have proved beyond a question that with the silo, cheaper milk can be produced.

The feeding of well-cured hay will do more to keep up the health of the dairy herd than any other single factor.

Acids of silage serve as a tonic and aid digestion and assimilation. Silage in the ration, therefore, not only is a food, but a tonic and a stimulating influence for production and growth.

• • •

No risk should be taken with a dairy-bred bull in any way that would give him a chance to get his killing instinct started.

Temperature of barns will remain more uniform, stock will be healthier, and the frost nuisance will be practically eliminated by good ventilation.

• • •

How Is Heart Organically?

Live and Let Live

Romantically and organically seem to be related as far as appearance goes. However, the former must rely on the latter for existence. If a heart is not organically right, there is little else that is right. Here are some of the signs of a heart that is working under difficulties. Often relief can be experienced through diet alone. When writing appears shaky, the condition is usually the outcome of hardened arteries. This puts a strain on the heart, although it itself might be normal. But it will not remain normal long if it has to work twice as hard because you have allowed deposits of calcium to settle in your joints and thus squeeze the flow of blood.

If there are breaks in certain down strokes, resembling a gnarled stick, the heart should be given attention and not put to unnecessary strain.

If pressure of writing is heavy and whole appears dirty, the heart should be considered and writer should avoid anger and dispute.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied.

Quality is the Important Consideration

We celebrate this week the birthday of a great man. A man who had the vision to conceive a mighty plan and the courage to fight for its fulfillment.

There is little new that one can say about Washington—few tributes that have not already been paid to his memory. He died over a century and a quarter ago, yet the quality of his deeds and thoughts lives on—the quality of his life will remain, long after the details are forgotten.

Quality or the lack of it! It spells the whole difference between success or failure in life, whether your business is shoes or sermons.

For 26 years, the J. C. Penney Company has kept the quality of the goods we offered uppermost in our thoughts. Washington, March 1.—(U.P.)—The Shipstead bill to outlaw labor injunctions would be declared unconstitutional if enacted into law, James A. Emery, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, told the senate judiciary committee today at a hearing on the bill.

HIRAM REED'S CONFESSION IS READ TO JURY

Ottawa, Ill., March 1.—(U.P.)—After reading to the jury Hiram Reed's confession that he placed dynamite in the Mount Pleasant school house stove in an attempt to kill his sweetheart, Iola Bradford, the state rested its case today.

Defense attorneys were prepared to start immediately their testimony contending coal gas, not dynamite, exploded.

Has Your Lover Will-Power?

that I can

ute my time

Firm, Straight Lines to Right, Will-Power.

The will is the thing! It means courage of conviction, tenacity and decision. When you find his or her letter in the mail this morning read it the second time with a view to discovering the basic, invaluable quality.

Will-power is shown in the writing by such signs as vertical writing, firm looking writing, terminals that look like those little checks a bank clerk makes in going over your list of deposits, and t bars running from the t in one word to the t in the following word. Also high t bars.

The longer the t bar and the longer the terminals at the end of the word the greater the vision of the writer and the greater the will.

When the t bars are short and heavy and you can see where the pen has been pressed down at the end of each word we will find a domineering will—one that will force itself and others in fits and starts.

The accurate placement of i dots and the appearance of neatness in the writing indicate will on the part of the writer.

Writing resembling that called a good "business hand" with the above signs existing can safely be accredited to one having a firm hold on himself—a person with a fine will.

CRIPPLED BADLY WITH RHEUMATISM!

Could Hardly Get Around

"Working in a damp place gave me rheumatism so badly I could hardly get around. My joints and knuckles were swollen badly and every muscle in my body seemed to ache. I tried 'St. Jacob's Oil' and got relief almost instantly. Today, thanks to that wonderful oil, I work eight hours a day in all kinds of weather without a bit of trouble."

Good old "St. Jacob's Oil" certainly does knock the pains and aches of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuritis, and Neuralgia. It penetrates directly to the affected parts and draws out all the pain and misery, and it doesn't burn the skin. Just try a small trial bottle which you can get from your druggist.

LIVE STOCK

SELLING CORN AS PORK IS FAVORED

At present prices of hogs and corn, the farmer who speculates in hog feeding will make little money, but the man who has the hogs and who has raised corn enough to feed them can make money by selling his corn as pork.

Records carefully kept on 2,276 head of hogs fed by farmers from January first to July first of this year show that these animals were sold for $48,904.97. The actual net profit on these hogs was $11,687.28 which was a return of 31 per cent on the investment. Of course, these animals were fed according to demonstration methods advocated by the county agents and swine extension workers of North Carolina State college. Both the farmers doing the feeding and the county agents who helped, kept careful records.

The figures show further that the corn fed to these hogs was sold for $1.62 per bushel. The hogs sold for an average price of $11.58 per hundred pounds and netted the growers $10.89 on the farm. The total dockage for soft and oily condition amounted to only $56.75.

Indications are now, states W. W Shay, swine extension specialist, that hogs will return very little over the market price for corn but by sticking to the system which has now been successfully established by many growers, the owner will be making money and at the same time, he will hold his machine in readiness to convert the corn crop of 1928 into pork at a good price. There is certain to be a heavy crop of corn planted next spring because of the shortage that will probably exist this winter. If the season is favorable to corn growing next year, there will be a large crop of cheap corn. In the meantime there will be a shortage of hogs, due to lack of feed this winter. Few hogs and much corn, mean a profit to the man who has both.

Therefore, Mr. Shay believes that the man who is established in the hog feeding game, should make his plans now for the year 1928.

Preventable Separator Losses Total Large Sum

What is the annual loss to dairymen from faulty separation of cream from the milk? Unless the dairyman is one who feels that a certain amount of whole milk should be fed to the hogs or chickens, how much butterfat can be considered wasted because it is fed along with the skim milk to these farm animals?

During a single month Iowa cow testers reported that the preventable losses through poor separation in 79 associations totaled $893.30. The fact that this loss is preventable is reason enough for being interested in the matter, disregarding the fact that the loss amounts to approximately $6,000 annually to members of the Iowa cow testing associations.

Temporary mishaps in separator operation may cause a slight preventable loss, but, on the whole, the fault usually rests with the separator. A clean separator that is set level, is properly oiled and run at the correct and uniform speed will get the butterfat from the milk as it should and will not contribute to this annual waste.

Happy Hymns

Hymns are meant to be offerings of objective praise, not expressions of personal self-abasement. The true hymn-singer is very like the lark. He cannot help singing, he is so glad. Children are our excellent exemplars in this. They are always ready to give thanks, melodiously. Our hymn-books should provide an outlet for this urge, not divert it into channels less spontaneous.—London Daily Telegraph.

Winter Protection for Dairy Cows Important

When the cold rains, sleets and snows of winter bother the dairyman, barn roofs prove to be cheaper shelters for dairy cows than the backs of animals. Some classes of stock can be wintered very satisfactorily out of doors in stormy weather, but exposure to such weather will immediately cause the dairy cow to decrease her milk flow. In addition to a decreased milk flow the cow will be required to consume more feed in order to maintain her body heat, both resulting in increased feed consumption in proportion to the amount of milk received.

Dairy Notes

Cow-testing associations have proved beyond a question that with the silo, cheaper milk can be produced.

• • •

The feeding of well-cured hay will do more to keep up the health of the dairy herd than any other single factor.

• • •

Acids of silage serve as a tonic and aid digestion and assimilation. Silage in the ration, therefore, not only is a food, but a tonic and a stimulating influence for production and growth.

• • •

No risk should be taken with a dairy-bred bull in any way that would give him a chance to get his killing instinct started.

Temperature of barns will remain more uniform, stock will be healthier, and the frost nuisance will be practically eliminated by good ventilation.

• • •

How Is Heart Organically?

Live and Let Live

Romantically and organically seem to be related as far as appearance goes. However, the former must rely on the latter for existence. If a heart is not organically right, there is little else that is right. Here are some of the signs of a heart that is working under difficulties. Often relief can be experienced through diet alone. When writing appears shaky, the condition is usually the outcome of hardened arteries. This puts a strain on the heart, although it itself might be normal. But it will not remain normal long if it has to work twice as hard because you have allowed deposits of calcium to settle in your joints and thus squeeze the flow of blood.

If there are breaks in certain down strokes, resembling a gnarled stick, the heart should be given attention and not put to unnecessary strain.

If pressure of writing is heavy and whole appears dirty, the heart should be considered and writer should avoid anger and dispute.

A NEW DEVELOPMENT IN HIGHWAYS

A NEW development in highways is mentioned editorially in the current issue of The New Republic.

Privately built motor express highways, collecting tolls for profit, represents a return to an economic phenomenon unknown in this country since its earliest days. For generations roads have been publicly built and maintained out of taxes, free for everyone's use.

Yet such a private highway is to be built from Philadelphia to Atlantic City, and other important ones are projected. In one respect there is a sound economic justification for this atavism. Express motor highways are not as necessary and useful for everyone as they are for a limited class of the population.

Fast motor-buses run for profit, and owners of private cars who desire to make long trips in them are about the only direct beneficiaries from express highways. Why should such highways be built and maintained from taxes levied on farm land or other real estate, from income taxes, or even from automobile license fees and gasoline taxes collected from the general run of motorists?

Yet there is no reason, if this position is correct, why the public authority itself should not collect the fee and build the road. And we should not lose sight of the fact that sound regional planning includes the location of roads in reference to the larger benefit of a whole community, rather than merely in the places where they can earn the most profit.

BORAH DOES NOT TAKE FULL SALARY

SENATOR WILLIAM EDGAR BORAH of Idaho, considered by many as a Republican presidential possibility, has refused for the past two years to accept the salary increase for Senators voted by Congress in March, 1925, because he claims that the people of Idaho elected him to office at the old salary, points out James O'Donnell Bennett in an article in this week's issue of Liberty Magazine.

"Borah voted against the bill to increase the salaries of Senators and Representatives from $7,500 a year to $10,000 a year," explains the writer. "In the preceding November the people of Idaho had elected him to his fourth term as Senator. His contention is that the people elected him to a $7,500 office, and knew they were so doing. Because of this, Borah, the foremost man in the Senate, has drawn from the sergeant at arms only three-fourths of the current senatorial salary. The other fourth he has had forwarded to the United States Treasury.

"Therefore," writes Mr. Bennett, "until he is elected for a fifth term—if ever—he cannot, in fairness to the people and with regard for his own honor, accept $10,000 a year. His present term will not expire until 1931. And it ought to be added that he has never sought to capitalize this decision."

OUR CONVENTION AND TOURIST SEASON

SPRING is just around the corner. The sun's presence is lengthening daily. You notice it in the morning and the evening. Roads are thawing. Robins are reported.

Brainerd faces an increased convention and tourist season. Many conventions have been booked ranging from the most ambitious international district convention of the Lions to state conventions such as the Moose and others. Committees are busy on all sides perfecting convention plans.

The entertaining lodge or club faces a program of continual work from now on to the time when the last visitor leaves. It is community work of the highest type, for every pleased delegate means gaining his goodwill and selling him the glorious benefits of Brainerd and our lake region.

The hope is expressed that the gateway planned for the south end of Sixth Street on Trunk Highway No. 27 will be built soon so that our many visitors will be impressed by this material representation of a gateway to the lake region.

COUNTY AGENT'S WORK

THE work of a county agent is one of importance to the rural communities and in turn influencing the whole county.

Its dignity and scope is best described in the words by County Agent E. G. Roth in the forword to his annual report for 1927, as submitted to the County Farm Bureau at their annual meeting:

"To achieve a goal—to complete a project—to establish a variety or custom—to make a field or a herd or a flock more profitable—to bring success and happiness to a family or an individual—to start a boy or a girl correctly on life's highway, in spite of hardships, self-denials, prejudice, inertia and lack of apparent interest are rewards for extension service measured in satisfaction, happiness and self-respect."

CHARACTER IS IMPORTANT

PROBABLY no word in our language needs more to be given thought, made prominent and emphasized in the press than character, says the Sherburn County Star-News.

From the selection of president to traffic officer at a street crossing the process of selection must never overlook character. Character in the saleswoman in the mercantile establishment serves the business and the purchaser by having just that little quality—character is her most valuable asset on which to base wages.

Character in a bank or insurance company is a synonym for millions of credit. Character in a president means stability for the nation.

COMMERCIALIZING ACTIVITIES

HAVE you noted how completely Ruth Elder has vanished from the news, inquires the Anoka Herald. She commercialized her activities and in consequence now must pay for her publicity or do without.

Lindbergh on the contrary refused to be commercialized, gets his publicity in great quantities and is said to be growing rich by legitimate means.

Grange, the football player, came the same cropper as Elder. Then there was What's-his-name who started for Europe without his hat. What ever became of him?

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, San Francisco boss, with lawyer, Brandon, attempts to gain possession of Vasquez ranch, occupied by Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores. Terry, Brandon's nephew, who loves Dolores, discloses their plot. Terry and Dolores have misunderstanding. Dolores falls into Buckwell's clutches. Terry saves her. Angered, Buckwell uses force to oust Vasquez, but is defeated. He tries guile, but Vasquez heeds Terry's warning and confronts Buckwell. Vasquez dies from stroke caused by Buckwell's threats. Dolores, alone in the world, discovers Buckwell's Chinese origin and tells Terry. They expose Buckwell, but he discovers their action and kidnaps them both.

Chapter XV—Continued

She was the very picture of proud truth and too young and innocent in appearance to be capable of a lie, especially a lie with such tremendous consequences as the one she had just uttered. Even the Chinamen realized this.

"Are you sure of what you say?" again questioned Lu Fong.

"I swear by my Grandfather's memory that my story is true!"

"What do you desire that we do in the matter?" The leader of the inner Circle was thoroughly aroused.

"I want Senor Buckwell to be—punished—" Dolores was almost overcome from the emotional strain and could say no more.

"Yes!" Lu Fong bared his teeth like a tiger ready for the promised kill.

The other Chinamen were no less cruel in their expressions and anticipation of revenge.

"Let the word spread," announced Lu Fong, rising with calm assurance, "that the persecutor of our people—he who contemptuously called us 'lowly yellow scum'—is a renegade to his race and his creed."

"Accept it, please, as a token of my gratitude."

The Tong men nodded assent and quickly withdrew to pass on word of their leader's message in various directions.

"Furthermore," continued Lu Fong, turning back to Dolores with deference, "we shall call him to account before those of the race to which he pretends—the white bosses shall be the Judges."

With the quick, silent motion of a snake San Toy, unnoticed, slid out of the room from between the drawn curtain and sped on her way to tell Buckwell the arresting news.

"When will you ask Senor Buckwell to account for himself?" inquired Terry.

"Before another sun has set," promptly replied Lu Fong with decision. "We will call on him tomorrow and disclose our information."

Dolores nodded her approval.

Lu Fong saw and for the first time indulged in a smile. It was a gentle smile of appreciation, and Dolores was not the least annoyed.

"It would give me pleasure to confer upon you a token of my thanks," said Lu Fong in a voice that indicated a niceness of which he was not generally thought capable, and turning to an ornate chest on a nearby table he selected an exquisitely handsome jade ornament on a slender silken cord. "Accept it, please, as a token of my gratitude," and bowing low he offered it to Dolores.

She admired the beautiful ornament and instinctively reached for it, but drew back and shook her head when she saw his long, slightly curled finger nails.

Terry noticed her hesitancy and nudging her on the elbow indicated that she had better take it. Lu Fong's head was still bowed and fortunately he did not notice.

"Thank you; it is lovely," said Dolores. She extended her hand gingerly to be sure that she would not touch the Chinaman, but to her surprise he appeared not to notice and stepping closer slipped the silken cord over her head.

As far as Lu Fong was concerned, the incident was over. Clapping his hands three times in quick succession, he stood like a statue and waited until a native servant appeared.

"Show my friends," he instructed significantly, "above to the street and see that no harm befalls them."

And then before Dolores and Terry knew what was happening they were bowed from the room. The guide led them through a strange tunnel-like passage which eventually brought them into a Chinese curio shop.

The keeper was there alone working busily at nothing. He and the guide exchanged brief nods and jointly opened the double doors to permit their master's friends to pass out unmolested.

Terry and Dolores thankfully breathed the fresh night air and looked about to get their bearings.

They were on Du Pont street, a short ways below the cafe they had entered earlier in the evening.

"Terry, I never want to come to any of these places again," said Dolores vehemently.

"And you never will. I have had my lesson at bringing you out—this is the last time." And sighing gratefully that it was all over without mishap, he helped her into the carriage.

"The Vasquez hacienda," Terry said to the sleepy driver, and settled back to enjoy the moonlight drive home with Dolores.

But no sooner had they passed the bright lights of that particular section than Chris Buckwell stepped from the shadows with Jimmie on one side and the Texas Kid, a notorious gangster, on the other.

"There they are," nodded Buckwell as the carriage drove past "Get busy—you know your orders."

As soon as Buckwell gave the word his henchmen rushed out in the street and swung on the carriage steps—one on either side. Quicker than it takes to tell about it Jimmie stuffed a gag in Dolores's mouth and the Texas Kid subjected Terry to the same treatment, in addition to snapping a pair of bracelets on his wrists. Deprived of hands and voice, Terry used his feet to great advantage in the pit of the Texas Kid's stomach. The bottom of the carriage was a scrambled mass of men until Jimmie snapped another pair of handcuffs around his victim's ankles. Terry was powerless.

He and Dolores looked into each others' eyes. A world of love and agonized misgivings flashed from one to the other.

Terry cursed himself again and again for having brought Dolores, and he shuddered at what was probably in store for her.

"Can the soft looks," commented Jimmie. "Say, Pete," he continued, reaching up and poking the driver in the back, "the gang's all here—let's go home!"

"Sure we'll get there—these horses ain't half bad. And the driver turned around to show his grinning face to the surprised young man and woman in the back.

He was not the man Terry had originally engaged!

Chris Buckwell sauntered out from his shadow and stopped to light a cigar. He was well satisfied. His plans had been made and executed within a half hour after San Toy rushed to him with her report. A cruel light gleamed in his eyes as he realized that those who were trying to destroy him were now in his power.

CHAPTER XVI

Dolores' Honor or Terry's Life

Jimmie and the Texas Kid derived considerable sport from watching their bound and gagged prisoners during that enforced drive in the carriage they had confiscated from Terry.

They kept up a constant stream of slang that Dolores could only partially understand. Terry listened intently. He wanted to gain an inkling of why and by whom they had been captured. It was evident that the thugs who attacked them in the street were merely acting as tools for some master mind.

"That's the biggest mouthful ye ever had in them pretty lips," said Jimmie, rearranging Dolores' gag so she would neither choke nor speak.

Her eyes opened wide and flared in anger, then, as she realized the hopelessness of the situation, she closed them tightly. Tears forced their way through the long lashes and rolled down her cheeks. She did not open them again until the sound of Terry's voice made her look at him in surprise.

His gag was being tied on more securely, but a quick twist of his head afforded momentary freedom, and, regardless of the fact that Dolores could hear, he cursed his captors with vehemence that aroused their admiration.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Frederick the Great

AN UNHAPPY boy, imprisoned and in danger of death, was one day forced by his father to stand at the grated window of his cell and watch his dearest friend executed. The boy was Prince Frederick of Prussia, later known as Frederick II, or Frederick the Great. He had a sadder, more unfortunate boyhood than did any beggar in his kingdom. His father, Frederick William, was a stern, harsh king, and a harsher parent. He was military-mad and would allow his young son Frederick to study nothing but the art of war. The boy loved poetry, music and science.

It was, in a measure, the old story of Peter the Great and Alexis over again. And it almost had the same terrible climax. For, at last, wearied by his father's abuse and cruelty, and resentful of the injustice to which he was subjected, Frederick made up his mind to run away from the life he hated and to take refuge with his mother's brother, King George I of England. His most intimate friend, Lieutenant Katt, helped him escape from Berlin; but their flight was discovered and they were caught and brought back. Then came such punishment as few fathers could have devised.

Frederick was sent to prison and Katt was put to death directly outside the prince's cell. King Frederick William then demanded that Frederick renounce all rights to the throne. This the prisoner pluckily refused to do. The king in rage declared he would put Frederick to death, and was with difficulty dissuaded from the plan. He contented himself with exiling his son from court; and, in 1733, when Frederick was but twenty-one, forced him to marry a princess for whom the young bridegroom had not the slightest liking. For seventeen years after that Frederick lived in semi-seclusion on one of his estates, only returning to public life when, on the death of his father, in 1740, he came to the throne of Prussia.

During the forty-six years of his reign Frederick well earned his title of "The Great." He found Prussia a secondary German state with a population of barely 2,240,000. He left it rich in new possessions, territory and power and with a population of 6,000,000.

The fair principalities of Silesia, according to Frederick's ideas, ought to belong to Prussia. So, the same year he became king, he set out to acquire them. A two years' war followed, in which Frederick's hardly acquired military education stood him in good stead. For he was victorious, and Silesia was annexed to Prussia. Frederick ruled his new possessions well and with mildness; and, although a Protestant, allowed religious freedom to Silesian Catholics. Knowing the unsettled condition of Europe and having fresh conquests in view, the victor now devoted himself to building up the strength of his armies; and, in 1743, he annexed East Friesland to his kingdom.

Austria, so Frederick believed, had designs on Silesia; so he formed an alliance with France and other countries and (to keep Austria's mind on matters of defense rather than aggression) invaded Bohemia in 1744. But the Austrians and Saxons combined and repelled the invasion. The campaign dragged on with varying fortunes until a peace treaty was signed by whose terms Frederick still held Silesia, and received $1,000,000 war indemnity.

Eleven years of peace followed, which were spent by Frederick in strengthening Prussia at home and abroad, in promoting arts and industries and in raising his army to 160,000 men. This peace period was broken by a rumor that Russia, Austria and Saxony were combining against Prussia. Fearing lest he might lose his cherished provinces of Silesia, Frederick forestalled the allies' action by invading Saxony. This started a seven years' war, in which Frederick won little except a military reputation that rendered him a strong and decisive power in European politics. When peace was declared he used his own private fortune in repairing the ravages made by war.

In the same year he concluded a treaty with Russia and was active in the first partition of Poland. By the terms of this division he acquired all of Polish Prussia and part of Great Poland to the north. Henceforth, Frederick's kingdom was divided into West and East Prussia.

The crowning act of Frederick's statecraft, and one that stirred the political system of the whole continent (as well as marking Prussia's first open attempt to lead all the German states), was the forming, in 1785, of the "Furstenbund" (League of Princes) of the German kingdoms and principalities into a solid federation; thus beginning what, in 1870, his descendant completed.

In 1786 Frederick the Great died, leaving his nephew, who succeeded him, a kingdom his genius had increased in area by 29,000 square miles, a population increased by 3,600,000, a treasury containing over $70,000,000 (the richest in Europe), an army of 200,000 and boundless credit with every other nation.

Thus, in his seventy-fourth year, perished the greatest of German monarchs, a man whose father had thought him a fool and unfit to reign.

A NEW DEVELOPMENT IN HIGHWAYS

A NEW development in highways is mentioned editorially in the current issue of The New Republic.

Privately built motor express highways, collecting tolls for profit, represents a return to an economic phenomenon unknown in this country since its earliest days. For generations roads have been publicly built and maintained out of taxes, free for everyone's use.

Yet such a private highway is to be built from Philadelphia to Atlantic City, and other important ones are projected. In one respect there is a sound economic justification for this atavism. Express motor highways are not as necessary and useful for everyone as they are for a limited class of the population.

Fast motor-buses run for profit, and owners of private cars who desire to make long trips in them are about the only direct beneficiaries from express highways. Why should such highways be built and maintained from taxes levied on farm land or other real estate, from income taxes, or even from automobile license fees and gasoline taxes collected from the general run of motorists?

Yet there is no reason, if this position is correct, why the public authority itself should not collect the fee and build the road. And we should not lose sight of the fact that sound regional planning includes the location of roads in reference to the larger benefit of a whole community, rather than merely in the places where they can earn the most profit.

BORAH DOES NOT TAKE FULL SALARY

SENATOR WILLIAM EDGAR BORAH of Idaho, considered by many as a Republican presidential possibility, has refused for the past two years to accept the salary increase for Senators voted by Congress in March, 1925, because he claims that the people of Idaho elected him to office at the old salary, points out James O'Donnell Bennett in an article in this week's issue of Liberty Magazine.

"Borah voted against the bill to increase the salaries of Senators and Representatives from $7,500 a year to $10,000 a year," explains the writer. "In the preceding November the people of Idaho had elected him to his fourth term as Senator. His contention is that the people elected him to a $7,500 office, and knew they were so doing. Because of this, Borah, the foremost man in the Senate, has drawn from the sergeant at arms only three-fourths of the current senatorial salary. The other fourth he has had forwarded to the United States Treasury.

"Therefore," writes Mr. Bennett, "until he is elected for a fifth term—if ever—he cannot, in fairness to the people and with regard for his own honor, accept $10,000 a year. His present term will not expire until 1931. And it ought to be added that he has never sought to capitalize this decision."

OUR CONVENTION AND TOURIST SEASON

SPRING is just around the corner. The sun's presence is lengthening daily. You notice it in the morning and the evening. Roads are thawing. Robins are reported.

Brainerd faces an increased convention and tourist season. Many conventions have been booked ranging from the most ambitious international district convention of the Lions to state conventions such as the Moose and others. Committees are busy on all sides perfecting convention plans.

The entertaining lodge or club faces a program of continual work from now on to the time when the last visitor leaves. It is community work of the highest type, for every pleased delegate means gaining his goodwill and selling him the glorious benefits of Brainerd and our lake region.

The hope is expressed that the gateway planned for the south end of Sixth Street on Trunk Highway No. 27 will be built soon so that our many visitors will be impressed by this material representation of a gateway to the lake region.

COUNTY AGENT'S WORK

THE work of a county agent is one of importance to the rural communities and in turn influencing the whole county.

Its dignity and scope is best described in the words by County Agent E. G. Roth in the forword to his annual report for 1927, as submitted to the County Farm Bureau at their annual meeting:

"To achieve a goal—to complete a project—to establish a variety or custom—to make a field or a herd or a flock more profitable—to bring success and happiness to a family or an individual—to start a boy or a girl correctly on life's highway, in spite of hardships, self-denials, prejudice, inertia and lack of apparent interest are rewards for extension service measured in satisfaction, happiness and self-respect."

CHARACTER IS IMPORTANT

PROBABLY no word in our language needs more to be given thought, made prominent and emphasized in the press than character, says the Sherburn County Star-News.

From the selection of president to traffic officer at a street crossing the process of selection must never overlook character. Character in the saleswoman in the mercantile establishment serves the business and the purchaser by having just that little quality—character is her most valuable asset on which to base wages.

Character in a bank or insurance company is a synonym for millions of credit. Character in a president means stability for the nation.

COMMERCIALIZING ACTIVITIES

HAVE you noted how completely Ruth Elder has vanished from the news, inquires the Anoka Herald. She commercialized her activities and in consequence now must pay for her publicity or do without.

Lindbergh on the contrary refused to be commercialized, gets his publicity in great quantities and is said to be growing rich by legitimate means.

Grange, the football player, came the same cropper as Elder. Then there was What's-his-name who started for Europe without his hat. What ever became of him?

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, San Francisco boss, with lawyer, Brandon, attempts to gain possession of Vasquez ranch, occupied by Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores. Terry, Brandon's nephew, who loves Dolores, discloses their plot. Terry and Dolores have misunderstanding. Dolores falls into Buckwell's clutches. Terry saves her. Angered, Buckwell uses force to oust Vasquez, but is defeated. He tries guile, but Vasquez heeds Terry's warning and confronts Buckwell. Vasquez dies from stroke caused by Buckwell's threats. Dolores, alone in the world, discovers Buckwell's Chinese origin and tells Terry. They expose Buckwell, but he discovers their action and kidnaps them both.

She was the very picture of proud truth and too young and innocent in appearance to be capable of a lie, especially a lie with such tremendous consequences as the one she had just uttered. Even the Chinamen realized this.

"Are you sure of what you say?" again questioned Lu Fong.

"I swear by my Grandfather's memory that my story is true!"

"What do you desire that we do in the matter?" The leader of the inner Circle was thoroughly aroused.

"I want Senor Buckwell to be—punished—" Dolores was almost overcome from the emotional strain and could say no more.

"Yes!" Lu Fong bared his teeth like a tiger ready for the promised kill.

The other Chinamen were no less cruel in their expressions and anticipation of revenge.

"Let the word spread," announced Lu Fong, rising with calm assurance, "that the persecutor of our people—he who contemptuously called us 'lowly yellow scum'—is a renegade to his race and his creed."

"Accept it, please, as a token of my gratitude."

The Tong men nodded assent and quickly withdrew to pass on word of their leader's message in various directions.

"Furthermore," continued Lu Fong, turning back to Dolores with deference, "we shall call him to account before those of the race to which he pretends—the white bosses shall be the Judges."

With the quick, silent motion of a snake San Toy, unnoticed, slid out of the room from between the drawn curtain and sped on her way to tell Buckwell the arresting news.

"When will you ask Senor Buckwell to account for himself?" inquired Terry.

"Before another sun has set," promptly replied Lu Fong with decision. "We will call on him tomorrow and disclose our information."

Dolores nodded her approval.

Lu Fong saw and for the first time indulged in a smile. It was a gentle smile of appreciation, and Dolores was not the least annoyed.

"It would give me pleasure to confer upon you a token of my thanks," said Lu Fong in a voice that indicated a niceness of which he was not generally thought capable, and turning to an ornate chest on a nearby table he selected an exquisitely handsome jade ornament on a slender silken cord. "Accept it, please, as a token of my gratitude," and bowing low he offered it to Dolores.

She admired the beautiful ornament and instinctively reached for it, but drew back and shook her head when she saw his long, slightly curled finger nails.

Terry noticed her hesitancy and nudging her on the elbow indicated that she had better take it. Lu Fong's head was still bowed and fortunately he did not notice.

"Thank you; it is lovely," said Dolores. She extended her hand gingerly to be sure that she would not touch the Chinaman, but to her surprise he appeared not to notice and stepping closer slipped the silken cord over her head.

As far as Lu Fong was concerned, the incident was over. Clapping his hands three times in quick succession, he stood like a statue and waited until a native servant appeared.

"Show my friends," he instructed significantly, "above to the street and see that no harm befalls them."

And then before Dolores and Terry knew what was happening they were bowed from the room. The guide led them through a strange tunnel-like passage which eventually brought them into a Chinese curio shop.

The keeper was there alone working busily at nothing. He and the guide exchanged brief nods and jointly opened the double doors to permit their master's friends to pass out unmolested.

Terry and Dolores thankfully breathed the fresh night air and looked about to get their bearings.

They were on Du Pont street, a short ways below the cafe they had entered earlier in the evening.

"Terry, I never want to come to any of these places again," said Dolores vehemently.

"And you never will. I have had my lesson at bringing you out—this is the last time." And sighing gratefully that it was all over without mishap, he helped her into the carriage.

"The Vasquez hacienda," Terry said to the sleepy driver, and settled back to enjoy the moonlight drive home with Dolores.

But no sooner had they passed the bright lights of that particular section than Chris Buckwell stepped from the shadows with Jimmie on one side and the Texas Kid, a notorious gangster, on the other.

"There they are," nodded Buckwell as the carriage drove past. "Get busy—you know your orders."

As soon as Buckwell gave the word his henchmen rushed out in the street and swung on the carriage steps—one on either side. Quicker than it takes to tell about it Jimmie stuffed a gag in Dolores's mouth and the Texas Kid subjected Terry to the same treatment, in addition to snapping a pair of bracelets on his wrists. Deprived of hands and voice, Terry used his feet to great advantage in the pit of the Texas Kid's stomach. The bottom of the carriage was a scrambled mass of men until Jimmie snapped another pair of handcuffs around his victim's ankles. Terry was powerless.

He and Dolores looked into each others' eyes. A world of love and agonized misgivings flashed from one to the other.

Terry cursed himself again and again for having brought Dolores, and he shuddered at what was probably in store for her.

"Can the soft looks," commented Jimmie. "Say, Pete," he continued, reaching up and poking the driver in the back, "the gang's all here—let's go home!"

"Sure we'll get there—these horses ain't half bad. And the driver turned around to show his grinning face to the surprised young man and woman in the back.

He was not the man Terry had originally engaged!

Chris Buckwell sauntered out from his shadow and stopped to light a cigar. He was well satisfied. His plans had been made and executed within a half hour after San Toy rushed to him with her report. A cruel light gleamed in his eyes as he realized that those who were trying to destroy him were now in his power.

CHAPTER XVI

Dolores' Honor or Terry's Life

Jimmie and the Texas Kid derived considerable sport from watching their bound and gagged prisoners during that enforced drive in the carriage they had confiscated from Terry.

They kept up a constant stream of slang that Dolores could only partially understand. Terry listened intently. He wanted to gain an inkling of why and by whom they had been captured. It was evident that the thugs who attacked them in the street were merely acting as tools for some master mind.

"That's the biggest mouthful ye ever had in them pretty lips," said Jimmie, rearranging Dolores' gag so she would neither choke nor speak.

Her eyes opened wide and flared in anger, then, as she realized the hopelessness of the situation, she closed them tightly. Tears forced their way through the long lashes and rolled down her cheeks. She did not open them again until the sound of Terry's voice made her look at him in surprise.

His gag was being tied on more securely, but a quick twist of his head afforded momentary freedom, and, regardless of the fact that Dolores could hear, he cursed his captors with vehemence that aroused their admiration.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(© by Dodd, Mead & Company.)

Frederick the Great

AN UNHAPPY boy, imprisoned and in danger of death, was one day forced by his father to stand at the grated window of his cell and watch his dearest friend executed. The boy was Prince Frederick of Prussia, later known as Frederick II, or Frederick the Great. He had a sadder, more unfortunate boyhood than did any beggar in his kingdom. His father, Frederick William, was a stern, harsh king, and a harsher parent. He was military-mad and would allow his young son Frederick to study nothing but the art of war. The boy loved poetry, music and science.

It was, in a measure, the old story of Peter the Great and Alexis over again. And it almost had the same terrible climax. For, at last, wearied by his father's abuse and cruelty, and resentful of the injustice to which he was subjected, Frederick made up his mind to run away from the life he hated and to take refuge with his mother's brother, King George I of England. His most intimate friend, Lieutenant Katt, helped him escape from Berlin; but their flight was discovered and they were caught and brought back. Then came such punishment as few fathers could have devised.

Frederick was sent to prison and Katt was put to death directly outside the prince's cell. King Frederick William then demanded that Frederick renounce all rights to the throne. This the prisoner pluckily refused to do. The king in rage declared he would put Frederick to death, and was with difficulty dissuaded from the plan. He contented himself with exiling his son from court; and, in 1733, when Frederick was but twenty-one, forced him to marry a princess for whom the young bridegroom had not the slightest liking. For seventeen years after that Frederick lived in semi-seclusion on one of his estates, only returning to public life when, on the death of his father, in 1740, he came to the throne of Prussia.

During the forty-six years of his reign Frederick well earned his title of "The Great." He found Prussia a secondary German state with a population of barely 2,240,000. He left it rich in new possessions, territory and power and with a population of 6,000,000.

The fair principalities of Silesia, according to Frederick's ideas, ought to belong to Prussia. So, the same year he became king, he set out to acquire them. A two years' war followed, in which Frederick's hardly acquired military education stood him in good stead. For he was victorious, and Silesia was annexed to Prussia. Frederick ruled his new possessions well and with mildness; and, although a Protestant, allowed religious freedom to Silesian Catholics. Knowing the unsettled condition of Europe and having fresh conquests in view, the victor now devoted himself to building up the strength of his armies; and, in 1743, he annexed East Friesland to his kingdom.

Austria, so Frederick believed, had designs on Silesia; so he formed an alliance with France and other countries and (to keep Austria's mind on matters of defense rather than aggression) invaded Bohemia in 1744. But the Austrians and Saxons combined and repelled the invasion. The campaign dragged on with varying fortunes until a peace treaty was signed by whose terms Frederick still held Silesia, and received $1,000,000 war indemnity.

Eleven years of peace followed, which were spent by Frederick in strengthening Prussia at home and abroad, in promoting arts and industries and in raising his army to 160,000 men. This peace period was broken by a rumor that Russia, Austria and Saxony were combining against Prussia. Fearing lest he might lose his cherished provinces of Silesia, Frederick forestalled the allies' action by invading Saxony. This started a seven years' war, in which Frederick won little except a military reputation that rendered him a strong and decisive power in European politics. When peace was declared he used his own private fortune in repairing the ravages made by war.

In the same year he concluded a treaty with Russia and was active in the first partition of Poland. By the terms of this division he acquired all of Polish Prussia and part of Great Poland to the north. Henceforth, Frederick's kingdom was divided into West and East Prussia.

The crowning act of Frederick's statecraft, and one that stirred the political system of the whole continent (as well as marking Prussia's first open attempt to lead all the German states), was the forming, in 1785, of the "Furstenbund" (League of Princes) of the German kingdoms and principalities into a solid federation; thus beginning what, in 1870, his descendant completed.

In 1786 Frederick the Great died, leaving his nephew, who succeeded him, a kingdom his genius had increased in area by 29,000 square miles, a population increased by 3,600,000, a treasury containing over $70,000,000 (the richest in Europe), an army of 200,000 and boundless credit with every other nation.

Thus, in his seventy-fourth year, perished the greatest of German monarchs, a man whose father had thought him a fool and unfit to reign.

TEAM MAKES CLEAN SWEEP OF SECOND HALF LEAGUE SERIES

MARSHALL, FITZHARRIS, WHITLOCK, LOWE, TEAM UP IN SCORING

The Brainerd American Legion team emerged champions of the Central Minnesota Basketball League last evening by defeating St. Cloud here by the count of 34 to 24 last evening.

The Granite City five gave a good exhibition of floor work but failed to hold the local forwards in check. Brainerd guards worked well, feeding the forwards continually with passes that netted baskets.

Marshall and Fitzharris teamed up in a scoring attack, each finding the loop for four baskets. Lowe came through with three nice field goals. Whitlock accounted for three field goals and one free throw.

The Legion completed the second half of the series without a loss. The team will now concentrate on the remaining games of the city series with the Y. M. C. A.

CHARGED WITH FALSE ADVERTISING IN PRIZE FIGHT FIASCO

Los Angeles, March 1.—(U.P.)—The now famous Dundee-Hudkins prize fight fiasco at Wrigley field last November entered the courts here today when three of the principals were summoned to trial on charges of false advertising.

Boston Baseball Club Has New Turf Nursery

A stock of turf grown through the summer and fall months in unfrequented corners of the outfield and the experiment of sowing grass through snow are methods chosen by the Boston Braves management for insuring a smooth playing surface on Braves field this year in place of the somewhat patched and mangy appearance the field has presented during the last few years.

Failure to grow turf on the infield last spring, due to hard usage, this year led to the establishment of a "turf nursery" near the center field flagpole, where footsteps are scarce. The new sod will be brought into the infield after the last of the 1928 spring thaws to bolster up new grass sown on top of a recent snowfall.

The snow planting was carried out with a seed mixture known in golfing and baseball circles for its hardihood, sown thickly on the snow crust. The recent thaw sent the seeds filtering through to the ground and a further warm period filtered enough water to bury the mixture several inches deep. The ground crew believes a thick new growth will result next spring.

Barney Dreyfuss says Cuyler was traded to the Cubs because he is too temperamental. Sparky Adams is a good infielder but, of course, that had nothing to do with it.

Kid Dorbert, who is remembered by old-timers for his battle with Patsy Kline, in which he was knocked down 33 times in eight rounds, recently promoted a benefit boxing program in Baltimore.

DELANEY FIGHTS HEENEY 15 ROUND BOUT TONIGHT

MULLEN AND RICKARD BATTLE FOR MANDELL McLARNIN TITLE BOUT

New York, March 1.—(U.P.)—The promoter's battle between Jim Mullen of Chicago and Tex Rickard of New York for the lightweight title bout between Sammy Mandell and Jimmy McLarnin may end in no bout at all.

Mullen has Mandell signed to a contract and Rickard has McLarnin tied to an agreement. Neither has made any progress so far with the other fighter.

After a conference with Pop Foster, McLarnin's manager, Mullen announced last night that he expected to close for the bout today.

However, Rickard announced McLarnin would do all his future fighting in New York.

"If I can't get Mandell, I will match McLarnin against the leading lightweights," Tex said. "McLarnin is the drawing card. A lightweight championship bout without McLarnin would be a flop and if there is any promoting of a Mandell-McLarnin bout I'll do it."

Eddie Kane, Mandell's manager, listened to a proposition from Rickard yesterday, but he hasn't figured out yet how to get out of the contract with Mullen. Kane and Rickard were scheduled to confer again today.

"I am prepared to give McLarnin $30,000 to fight Mandell in Chicago," Mullen said, "and that's more than Madison Square Garden can offer him. I'm here to get the Mandell-McLarnin bout for Chicago and I'm going to get it."

New Basket Ball Ruling on Blocking Explained

The rule on blocking, considered ambiguous by leading basket ball officials and long the subject of controversy, probably will cause no further difficulty for referees of intercollegiate court games.

Clarification of the rule that stated merely that "blocking is impeding the progress of an opponent who has the ball resulted at the annual meeting of the eastern intercollegiate basket ball league.

The following interpretation of rule 7, section 12, was adopted:

"No blocking foul results unless personal contact is made with the following exception: If a player attains a position on the floor which results in cutting off an opponent and subsequently makes any movement or motion that impedes the progress of the opponent cut off, even though no personal contact with his opponent is effected thereby, it may be a block."

Speaking for the executive committee of the league, of which he is a member, Ellwood Kemp, Jr. of New York, declared the league adopted this interpretation in an effort to make the game more uniform. The game will be speeded up, he said, less fouls committed, and the play made more interesting to the spectator.

IF DELANEY WINS, HE MAY SUCCEED JACK DEMPSEY

DELANEY CONSIDERED MOST COLORFUL AMONG HEAVYWEIGHTS

IF HE BESTS HEENEY, HE WILL CONTEST WITH TUNNEY NEXT SUMMER

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, March 1.—(U.P.)—The man who might fill the place in the boxing world left vacant by the retirement of Jack Dempsey faces the supreme test of his career in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., meets honest Tom Heeney of Gisborne, New Zealand, in a scheduled 15-round bout and a decisive victory will send the French-Canadian down the trail to fistic fame and fortune.

If the former light-heavyweight champion knocks out Heeney, he will be hailed as Jack Dempsey's successor and the ballyhoo will be on for a championship bout between Gene Tunney and Delaney in Yankee stadium on June 14.

The most colorful figure among active heavyweights, Delaney needs only an outstanding victory over a good big man to skyrocket him into the position of leading heavyweight challenger.

On the verge of heavyweight prestige last winter, Delaney gave one of the worst exhibitions of fighting on record and lost the decision to Jim Maloney, one of the worst heavyweights of the age.

But fight fans are quick to forgive and forget. Delaney went out and rocked any number of second rate heavyweights to sleep and he's back at the top bidding for a chance at the heavyweight title.

And if he wins tonight in the biggest chance he ever has had, he will climb into a ring with Gene Tunney this summer.

Simply because Delaney is popular with the mob, he is the favorite to defeat Heeney at odds of 6 to 5. A comparison of their records and Jack's notorious weakness for failing in a crisis do not justify any odds being placed on Delaney.

Delaney will be forced to concede almost twenty pounds to Heeney, and many experts believe it will be too big a handicap for him to surmount. Jack carries a stick of dynamite in his right hand and he has floored some big men, but he has yet to knock out a really first-class heavyweight.

Tom lacks the class and color of Delaney, but he is a hardworking, plodding fighter who is oftimes better than he is given credit for being. He has improved with every fight and in his last appearance against Jack Sharkey made the best showing since he has been in this country.

Sharkey was a top-heavy favorite, but when the bout was over the Boston Gob was extremely lucky to get a draw and many thought Heeney had won.

Heeney is a courageous fighter and is as tough as they make 'em. Delaney may defeat Heeney, but the odds are 10 to 1 against him knocking him out.

If the bout goes 15 rounds, Heeney at 195 pounds may wear Delaney down with his body blows and win by a technical knockout. Tom's punches are not the kind that stop anyone cold, but they carry steam to batter up the toughest of them and Joe Jacobs is not likely to leave his $50,000 bric-a-brac in the ring to take a beating after the tenth round.

Nothing less than the greatest fight of his life will give Delaney any kind of a victory over Heeney tonight.

New York, March 1.—(U.P.)—Two champions differ on the outcome of tonight's heavyweight elimination bout between Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney.

Gene Tunney, who is training at Miami Beach, Fla., picks Delaney to win, while Tommy Loughran, the light-heavyweight champion, believes Heeney will win.

"I think Delaney will win on points," Tunney said. "Jack is too fast with his hands and feet and I think he knows a little too much for Heeney."

Loughran also things the fight will go the 15-round limit, but favors Heeney to get the verdict.

"Those short club-like punches to the head and body which Heeney delivers will wear Delaney down," Tommy said. "Tom is a smarter fighter than a lot of persons think. Besides he's tough and aggressive."

Avon Park—Pepper Martin, speedy outfielder who was with the Houston club of the Texas league last season, has attracted the attention of Manager Bill McKechnie at the Cardinals training camp here. He starred in yesterday's practice in which Manager McKechnie spent all of his time with the outfielders. Jess Haines, speed ball pitcher, took his first turn on the mound yesterday.

LOCAL ENTRIES IN BEST OF CONDITION; TEAM LEAVES ON TRAIN EARLY TONIGHT

Although Brainerd has defeated Little Falls in two clashes this season, the locals expect plenty of competition this evening when the two teams meet in the tournament at Aitkin this evening.

Wadena defeated Aitkin yesterday in the first game of the meet by the count of 17 to 14. It was a fast game, Aitkin displaying better form than it has shown all season.

The Brainerd high shcool cagers will enter the tournament fresh. Every player is in pink of condition and those who had been suffering with colds last week have completely recovered.

The players will leave by train this evening accompanied by a large group of fans.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Absent and unheard from, Heinie Manush, outfielder obtained from Detroit, was labelled a holdout today by the St. Louis Browns. Lu Blue, first baseman who came to the Browns in the trade with Manush, was expected today.

Shreveport, La.—With seventeen players on hand the Chicago White Sox were to take their second day's practice here today. Nine players, headed by Manager Ray Schalk, arrived yesterday. A short workout was held four hours after arrival.

Avalon, Catalina Island—Delighted with the long distance hitting of Kiki Cuyler and Hack Wilson, Manager Joe McCarthy today began to devote his attention to the infielders. McCarthy is confident Stephenson, Cuyler and Wilson will give the Cubs the strongest outfield in the National league.

Augusta, Ga.—The New York Giants were to begin their training here today with workouts in the morning and afternoon. The Giants will remain here seventeen days. Travis Jackson, Lefty O'Doul, George Harper and Allen Fincher, rookie outfielder discovered by Jackson, joined the Giants yesterday en route from Hot Springs, where the battery men trained for two weeks.

Clearwater, Fla.—Max West, outfielder from the Waco club of the Texas league, was on his way here today to join the Brooklyn Robins. As soon as West came in from the oil fields where he had been working, he wired Manager Wilbert Robinson his contract was satisfactory.

Fort Myers, Fla.—Tris Speaker was xpected to report to the Philadelphia Athletics at their training camp here oday. Nothing has been heard from Ty Cobb, but Manager Connie Mack has not given up hope of having Cobb with the A's for another season.

After a variegated and colorful ring career, which has extended over nine busy years, Jack Delaney of Bridgeport finds himself tonight at the threshold of fortune.

If Ovila Chapdelaine, as his French-American parents christened him 28 years ago this month, can take the all-important step across that threshold, he is due to become rich beyond the more ordinary dreams of avarice.

Barring the way is a stubborn, stalwart, stocky Irishman, freckled and full of fight—Tom Heeney from far-away New Zealand.

Delaney must knock out Heeney to remove him effectively from the path to fistic fame and the wealth that goes with a championship battle for the world's heavyweight title. Mere victory on points will hardly suffice. The Rapier of the North must drive home the kill.

Since the Bridgeport boxer retired undefeated from the light heavyweight championship of the world, he has beaten Jack Renault, knocked out Paul Berlenbach, Sully Montgomery, Jack Humbeck and Leo Gates and generally re-established his reputation as a terrific hitter and one of the cleverest of boxers.

Although light, Delaney is the best combination of a boxer and a hitter among the big fellows today.

Tom Heeney also has every incentive to win tonight, although even if he should do so, he would certainly be required to fight a return match with Jack Sharkey of Boston. Heeney and Sharkey fought a disappointing draw last winter.

It is the Delaney uppercut which spells sleep for whomever it encounters for which the throng in Madison Square Garden will be watching tonight.

A flash of one of those strong white arms, the thud of a soggy glove against a human jaw, and a hear-ache for Mr. Heeney. That would be the solution of most of Jack Delaney's monetary problems for some years to come.

Some believe that the Heeney jaw is too tough a proposition for even Delaney's wallop, but such is not the case. Jaws are not made that tough.

If Heeney goes in from the start to rough Jack about and maul him in the clinches and keeps a cautious look-out for that right hand in the meantime, there may be a different story to tell.

The Bridgeport boxer has been such an in-and-outer during his career t is all but impossible to tell what to expect next.

One recent black mark on Jack's score is his defeat by Johnny Risko last all. Another is his even more surprising defeat at the hands of Jimmy Maloney in last year's heavyweight elimination tournament. And a third is his victory over Paolino Uzcudun on a foul after a fight in which the Basque had somewhat the better of it.

Undoubtedly, Delaney has a lot for which to answer, and the only satisfactory answer would be a knockout victory over Tom Heeney tonight.

CHARGED WITH FALSE ADVERTISING IN PRIZE FIGHT FIASCO

Los Angeles, March 1.—(U.P.)—The now famous Dundee-Hudkins prize fight fiasco at Wrigley field last November entered the courts here today when three of the principals were summoned to trial on charges of false advertising.

Boston Baseball Club Has New Turf Nursery

A stock of turf grown through the summer and fall months in unfrequented corners of the outfield and the experiment of sowing grass through snow are methods chosen by the Boston Braves management for insuring a smooth playing surface on Braves field this year in place of the somewhat patched and mangy appearance the field has presented during the last few years.

Failure to grow turf on the infield last spring, due to hard usage, this year led to the establishment of a "turf nursery" near the center field flagpole, where footsteps are scarce. The new sod will be brought into the infield after the last of the 1928 spring thaws to bolster up new grass sown on top of a recent snowfall.

The snow planting was carried out with a seed mixture known in golfing and baseball circles for its hardihood, sown thickly on the snow crust. The recent thaw sent the seeds filtering through to the ground and a further warm period filtered enough water to bury the mixture several inches deep. The ground crew believes a thick new growth will result next spring.

Barney Dreyfuss says Cuyler was traded to the Cubs because he is too temperamental. Sparky Adams is a good infielder but, of course, that had nothing to do with it.

Kid Dorbert, who is remembered by old-timers for his battle with Patsy Kline, in which he was knocked down 33 times in eight rounds, recently promoted a benefit boxing program in Baltimore.

CUT OUT DRAFTS FOR MOST EGGS

An important requirement for successful winter egg production in a flock of pullets is a house that is free from drafts. Colds, chickenpox, and roup, says the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, often can be traced to the birds' becoming chilled because of a drafty house.

To insure oneself against this undesirable condition it is necessary to have the house airtight on three sides. This is often difficult to do, but any cracks near the floor or directly around the roosts particularly are to be avoided. These should by all means be covered. Cracks around the entrance door are a very common occurrence and one may often find the birds cuddled up in a far corner in an effort to keep warm. By putting weather strips on the doors the poultry men easily eliminate this problem.

After the three sides are tightened up, the front may be kept reasonably open. As a rule, however, it is best to have about equal proportions of glass and muslin in front, and the two combined may take up about one half of the front surface of the house. The spaces between the rafters above the plate may also be kept open. The muslin curtains should be closed at night and never opened on stormy days or even in the early morning or late evening. The house should always feel comfortable when one enters it. Many poultrymen have found that the glass substitute products have been very satisfactory. They admit much more light than the muslin, and also keep the house warmer. Ventilation through the rafter spaces at the eaves is usually sufficient to keep the birds in good health.

With the sides and front well taken care of, the only possible cause for drafts would be a long house without partitions. To overcome the tendency for the wind to sweep in one end of such a house and out the other, it is well to build partitions every 40 feet. These should extend to the roof and come up to within three feet of the front of the house, or if desired, a door may be fitted into this three-foot space, making the partition solid. Partitions in the roosting quarters only should be built every 20 feet.

Forcing Maturity of Pullets Is Mistake

It is a mistake to force the maturity of pullets with large amounts of milk or meat, warns O. C. Ufford, extension poultry specialist, Colorado Agricultural college. "A pullet should have a good body growth before she starts laying. An undersized pullet seldom makes a profitable hen. Small amounts of milk or meat should be used to produce normal growth, but it should not be overdone. Feed plenty of grain, part of it ground, along with milk or meat.

"Once pullets have begun to lay," Mr. Ufford continues, "the milk or meat should be gradually increased, as it is part of the ration necessary to produce eggs. If there is a deficiency of animal protein in the ration, production will gradually decline and fall molt result. Gradually allow the birds all the milk they will drink, or if milk is not available bring the amount of meat scrap up to 20 per cent of the ground feed used."

Sees Hatchability and Feeding Value of Eggs

One of the important points brought out by Prof. J. G. Halpin of the University of Wisconsin at the Ohio poultry day at Wooster, Ohio, is that the hatchability and food value of eggs may be changed with the type of feed given. Professor Halpin asserted that the time will come when people will demand that eggs for their children shall not come from hens with rickets. It is, as he said, generally agreed that children are benefited by cod liver oil, especially during the winter months. But it is unnecessary to compel the children to take cod liver oil when it might as well be fed to the chickens in the first place, and the quality of the eggs improved to overcome the deficiency.

Hopper Space

Standing in line for their feed is objectionable to hens, and, furthermore, they will not do their best when forced to do this, says H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Hence the value of a good egg mash often is limited by the hopper in which it is fed, he said. Feeding space for all hens at all times is the rule that should be kept in mind in building a poultry feed hopper, he recommended.

Dry Skimmed Milk

Feed dealers and feed mixers are recognizing the increasing demand for dry skimmed milk, which is now being manufactured in sufficient quantities to supply the growing poultry needs. Milk by-products, semi-solid and dry, supply the poultryman a superior quality of protein and lime and certain vitamines; but apparently of equal or more importance is the milk sugar which in the intestinal tract seems to perform a service not supplied by any other feed on the list.

JANE A. DELANO WORLD WAR NURSE HEROINE IN WHOSE MEMORY, NURSES ARE ASKED TO ENROLL IN RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE

THE BABY WHO ARRIVED WITH THE MISSISSIPPI FLOOD IS BUT ONE OF HUNDREDS OF PROBLEMS TO BE MET BY THE RED CROSS NURSE IN PEACE TIME

TO enlist the young women of the nation in the cause of mercy, prepared to serve in time of the country's stress—in peace or war—is one of the purposes which has prompted the American Red Cross Nursing Service to call for the second annual observance of Jane A. Delano Nurses Recruiting Week, from March 5 to 12.

Only graduate trained nurses, from accredited schools, may enroll in the Red Cross Nursing Service. In honoring, nation-wide, the memory of Jane Delano—famous and distinguished head of the Red Cross Nurses prior to and during the World War, it is hoped also to direct the attention of girls graduating from high school and college to the nursing profession as a career offering wide possibilities of service.

Regulations of the U. S. Army designate the enrolled Red Cross nurses as a reserve to the Army Nurses Corps, subject to call to duty in time of war. In addition the Red Cross nurses are called into service at times of great disaster, such as the Mississippi Valley flood of 1927, or in any other relief or humanitarian work conducted under the auspices of the American Red Cross. During the World War, more than 20,000 graduate nurses were supplied by the Red Cross to serve with the Army and Navy and other Government services and the Red Cross; many hundreds of these were utilized for nursing relief work under Red Cross commissions in foreign nations; and thousands gave great assistance in the crises of the several influenza epidemics in the United States.

"Marriage removes an average of 100 nurses from our active roll each month," said Miss Clara D. Noyes, national director of American Red Cross nursing service, in discussing plans for Jane A. Delano Week, "and death, illness and resignation cause us to lose another fifty each month. The nurse who marries or who passes the age limit of 45, may enroll for Home Defense work, but she is not eligible for the Army service. Although we have had an average enrollment of 46,000 since the beginning of enrollment twenty years ago, to maintain our standard we must enroll the young graduate nurses as they come from school.

"We are anxious also to have the girl, just leaving high school or college, who is thinking of a career, consider what fascination and interest—and even romance—lie in the also very sympathetic and helpful career of the nurse. Remuneration, whether in public work, in military or civilian work, or in private or hospital life, is comparable with that in other professions open to women."

Senior classes of virtually all nurses' training schools will participate in exercises March 12, the birth date of Miss Delano, in commemoration of her great service to nursing and of her heroic death in France, a sacrifice to war service, not long after the Armistice. Enrollment of graduate nurses is consummated through committees composed of Red Cross nurses on Red Cross nursing service in the various communities.

SCORES REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION IN LOS ANGELES SPEECH

Los Angeles, March 1.—(UP)—Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, resumed his western campaign for the democratic presidential nomination here last night with another attack on republican administration.

Before a large democratic meeting in the Olympic Auditorium, the Missouri senator charged the Coolidge administration with violation of state's rights, inefficent handling of foreign relations and a "concentration of power in Washington that could result only ni corruption."

"I appeal to all democrats," Reed said, "for a return of honesty in government and for the establishment of the old democratic doctrine."

184 HOSPITALS AND INSTITUTIONS ARE USING FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Old Fashioned Medicine for Colds and Body Building Has Proved its Value By 70 Years Success

Father John's Medicine is now being used regularly in 184 different hospitals, and institutions from coast to coast in the United Statse as well as in Canada. The names of all these institutions may readily be obtained from the Lowell, Mass., office where the original orders for the medicine are on file in proof of our statement with thousands of letters of endorsement from institutions and individuals all over the continent.

During its 70 years of success in the treatment of colds, throat troubles and as a body builder, Father John's Medicine has come to be recognized in a great many hospitals and charitable institutions as having great value. Because it is guaranteed free from alcohol or any narcotic drugs in any form, doctors prescribe it for young children as well as older people.

Father John's Medicine is a high grade emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with other valuable ingredients. Because it builds new tissue and strength it is known as "the Greatest Body Builder."

Doctors have known the value of cod liver oil for a great many years and have used it freely in their practice. Modern research has determined the reason for its value, and given it the name of vitamins.

The original prescription for Father John's Medicine, from which it is still prepared, contained cod liver oil as its principal ingredient, and this is the reason why Father John's Medicine has achieved its ever growing success as a tonic and body-builder for those who are weakened or run down.

The Dominican Sisters of St. Dominic Monastery, LaCrosse, Wisconsin, allow us to quote from a recent letter:

"We have found out that there is nothing better than Father John's Medicine for colds, or building up the body; it does a world of good."

Watch the fellow who actually complains that nobody understands him. There's a reason and it usually is because he does not understand himself and never acts the same way twice. Such a personality is seen easily in the writing and the plainest key is that of a variation in the slant of the writing. The dual personality writer will write vertical, back-hand and slanting forward all in the same letter. He will also make a t bar to the left of the upright at the start of a sentence, one atop the upright in the middle of the sentence and another far to the right of the upright before he is through. This also spells versatility.

Look also for upright letters like t, l, and d, reaching high toward the heavens, and then you will see the lower half of the letters f and p reaching far down under the line. This indicates that while the writer is inspired with lofty ambitions, at times he is also capable of being very material and thinking too much of his own interests.

POULTRY

CUT OUT DRAFTS FOR MOST EGGS

An important requirement for successful winter egg production in a flock of pullets is a house that is free from drafts. Colds, chickenpox, and roup, says the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, often can be traced to the birds' becoming chilled because of a drafty house.

To insure oneself against this undesirable condition it is necessary to have the house airtight on three sides. This is often difficult to do, but any cracks near the floor or directly around the roosts particularly are to be avoided. These should by all means be covered. Cracks around the entrance door are a very common occurrence and one may often find the birds cuddled up in a far corner in an effort to keep warm. By putting weather strips on the doors the poultry men easily eliminate this problem.

After the three sides are tightened up, the front may be kept reasonably open. LAST MINUTE RUSH TO REMIT TAXES

Deadline on Payment of 1927 Personal Property Taxes Came Last Evening

10 PERCENT PENALTY TODAY

Over 1,000 Persons Visited the Office of County Treasurer This Week

Over 1,000 taxpayers got in under the wire this week in payment of their 1927 personal property and money and credits taxes, it was estimated today by Sam R. Adair, county treasurer.

While no figure is available yet for publication it is learned that the county coffers have been boosted considerably as a result of the payment of the taxes.

The deadline for paying the tax came yesterday. The office remained open last evening to take care of last minute taxpayers. Today a 10 percent penalty was imposed on delinquent taxpayers. No penalty will be made on those remitting their taxes by mail up to yesterday.

AUDIENCE FINDS RECITAL PLEASING

Four Piano Soloists as a Quartette at Two Pianos Prove Most Interesting

RECEIVE HIGH PRAISE

Presented Under Direction of Mrs. W. A. M. Johnstone and Mrs. Louis Knudsen

Kathryn Smith Allbright, Virginia Guneille Halladay, Bernice Elaine LeMire, and Edythe Bernice Brandt appeared in a piano quartette recital at the Congregational church on Tuesday evening of this week under the dircetion of Mrs. W. A. M. Johnstone, assisted by Mrs. Louis Knudsen at the organ.

Too much could not be said in its praise. Nothing was lacking to make it the unqualified success it attained. The program was of highest merit in its interest and dignity of material, the preparation without fault. The plan of presenting four piano soloists as a quartette at two pianos proved more interesting than the less unified groups of miscellaneous solos were apt to have been.

The rendition of the Rakoczi Marsch by Liszt which opened the program was scarcely under way before the audience was completely at ease. At once it was felt that no allowances need be made for the facts that the girls were young and still students. They played with assurance of professionals and the recital was enjoyed with the same unalloyed pleasure that one would expect to derive from hearing a performer who had already "arrived."

Miss Allbright presented the analytical remarks with a poise that reflected much credit upon herself in being able to assume this added responsibility without the least indecision. These analyses added much to the enjoyment of the program especially in the case of the II Rhapsodie Hongroise.

This, their second quartette number, impressed one with their perfection of ensemble work to such a degree as to make individual criticizm almost impossible, which after all is the best compliment that could be paid the performers or their teacher.

Virginia Halladay and Edythe Brandt played Le Matin by Chaminade and Valse Tyrolienne by Raff for two pianos. The absolute attention of the audience bore testimony to the appreciation of these numbers. The solo piano work excellent as it was was not more commendable than that at the accompaniment piano. There was a sensitiveness in its performance that was scarcely less than exquisite.

Kathryn Allbright, the soloist of the evening, played Courante, Allemande, and Gigue by Bach followed by "To the Rising Sun" by Torgueseen, a very modern composer. She played her Bach with a verve that would indicate an enjoyment of the old master that is unusual in so young a pianiste. In the second half of the program she played a MacDowell group and "Morning" by Grieg. The flutter of amusement that passed over the audience at the concluison of "The Witch" by MacDowell indicated that Miss Allbright was capable of conveying to her audience the meaning of her composer.

"Romance' 'and "Valse" by Arensky, a duo for two pianos, played by Kathryn Allbright and Bernice LeMire followed the intermission. In this and all else during the evening they played with an ease that bespoke a preparation which had made the music their own. Their technique was always clear cut without making any sacrifice to interpretation.

The "Jubel Overture" by Weber, a quartette with pipe organ brought the evening's program to a close. It was a well chosen climax. The "Jubel Overture" is always stirring. When a performance such as the piano quartette was capable of giving it is added to by musicianship such as Mrs. Knudsen has to offer an ensemble is effected such as not often is heard here.

Too much cannot be said in appreciation of Mrs. Johnstone's work in Brainerd as a teacher of piano. The aim of many teachers seems to be limited to the development of a pupil's technique. With Mrs. Johnstone artistry goes hand in hand with technical achievement. Throughout the program one could not but be aware of the teacher who had inculcated in the performers their competent conception of the meaning of the composition in its entirety; their ideals of tone quality and interpretation, and who had assisted in the ensemble work their acquirement of perfect balance of parts.

The recital was one that afforded the greatest pleasure in every detail. Not only was their musicianship of high merit but the girls were charming in their fresh youthfulness, their unaffected sincerity, their lack of mannerisms, and their lovely personal appearance, all of which could be said as impartially of one as the other.

They were the recipients of many beautiful floral gifts which perhaps were enjoyed as much by the audience as the girls who received them as everyone felt they were highly deserving of the implied praise.

RADIO SUPPERS AT PEAK OF INTEREST

Limit to Popularity Will be Size of Available Homes Equipped With Radio Sets

HEAR FLOOD CONTROL BILLS

League of Women Voters' General Meeting Held at Home of Mrs. John Cummins

The large attendance at the League of Women Voters' general meeting at the home of Mrs. John Cummins, on Tuesday afternoon and evening indicates that the only limit to the popularity of these radio suppers will be the size of available homes equipped with radio receiving sets. Mrs. Cummins and Mrs. A. M. Opsahl have generously offered their commodious homes for the general meetings once a month, but it begins to look as if they would both have to build additions, if interest continues to grow.

For the first time, the radio reception was not all that could be desired, but it cleared up to enable the women to hear the summing up of the various flood control bills now before congress. The main object of these radio talks is to arouse the interest of the women in vital public questions that demand an intelligent public opinion to facilitate their settlement. No doubt those who tried so hard to hear "the lady from Washington" will follow the debates in congress with much keener interest because of this discussion, even though it was possible to hear only her conclusions.

The reception was much better for the National League broadcasting at 6 o'clock. Miss Ruth Morgan, National Chairman of International Relations, introduced the speakers, who were Dr. Frank McDonald, of New York, representing the American Peace Foundation, and Senator Gillett, of Massachusetts. The former gave the historic background of the World Court, emphasizing the influence of Elihu Root in its organization.

Senator Gillette then gave his reasons for introducing a resolution reopening the controversy. He said that since it was the Fifth Reservation made by the Senate that had blocked our entrance into the Court, the State Department naturally felt that it was up to the Senate to make the next move, if this country were to make any move toward participation in the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

Senator Gillette gave, briefly, a list of the most important decisions handed down by the Court and said that it had done more business than our own Supreme Court did in the first ten years of its existence. He then gave Borah's three chief objections to the Court viz., that it was a part of the League of Nations and that entrance into it meant joining the League of Nations; that it was no better than the old Hague Court; and that there was no use of having a court, any way, until international law was codified.

Senator Gillette then gave Charles Evans Hughes' answers to these objections. To the first he stated that it was entirely independent of the League of Nations, although created by that body. To the second, he replied that the Hague tribunal was not a court at all, in the true sense of the word, but merely a list of judges who might be assembled to form a court; as to the question as to which should come first, the code or the court, Mr. Hughes said that the codification of international law was necessarily a slow process but that it could be greatly facilitated by the decisions of such a noted and independent body of jurists as those sitting in the World Court.

Continuing his argument, Senator Gillette said that in objecting to the fifth reservation, the conference had courteously suggested further conferences with the United States as a member, in the hope of clearing away the difficulties. It was in the hope of opening up the question, once more, to see if this wouldn't be possible, that he offered his resolution.

The League members were so impressed by Senator Gillette's argument that a motion to telegraph our Minnesota senators to support the Gillette resolution was made and carried.

It was then announced that the next meeting—which will be a board meeting—will be held at the home of Mrs. Howard Dougherty, 312 N. 5th street. The program will consist of a round table discussion on the caucus and the primary. Twelve new members were reported by the chairmen of the competing membership teams.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Garibaldi

A STOCKY, bearded man was arrested on a charge of so-called treason. He was Giuseppe Garibaldi, son of a poor Italian fisherman, and himself a sailor by occupation. In 1834, when only twenty-seven, he joined the "Young Italy" society, was implicated in a plot to free his country from the Austrian yoke, and was condemned to death.

"This ends your career, my friend," remarked one consolatory jailor.

"You are mistaken," retorted Garibaldi, coolly. "My destiny is not fulfilled. Italy's not yet free. I shall live."

He made good his words by escaping from prison. He found his way to South America, where he plunged at once into the warfare that convulsed that continent, and repeatedly won fame by his efforts in behalf of the weaker side. He was taken prisoner by the Brazilian government, escaped, eloped with a beautiful Creole, successively picked up a living as cattleman, ship broker and teacher of mathematics, organized an Italian legion and served as naval commander for Montevideo in the latter's war with Buenos Ayres. Then he returned to Italy and, raising a body of irregular troops, again harried the Austrians.

Italy was divided into a number of independent and semi-independent principalities, including a group of states under the direct temporal rule of the pope. But the northern part of the country was in Austria's hands, while nearly all of it was more or less under Austrian domination. Austria bullied and oppressed the hapless land cruelly. As a result, Mazzini and other patriots formed a horde of secret societies with the hope of freeing their downtrodden fatherland and joining its separate states into one strong union. In 1830, 1834 and at other times revolts sprang up, only to be crushed with an iron hand.

The Carbonari, "Young Italy" and similar patriotic leagues continued their efforts, and in 1848 Garibaldi and his fellow revolutionists captured Rome, forcing the pope to fly to Gaeta. They formed a republic in which Garibaldi and Mazzini were supreme. But Napoleon III (who had earlier pledged his support to the revolutionists) sent a French army to the pope's aid. Garibaldi gallantly held Rome against the stronger foe for thirty days, but was at last forced to evacuate the city. Again Garibaldi was forced to flee from Italy. He now came to New York, where he remained for over a year, working as a candle maker and living on Staten island. Later he was captain of a Pacific merchantman. In 1854 he returned to Italy and bought a farm on the island of Caprera, off the Sardinian coast. But he was not allowed to remain long in seclusion.

Charles Albert, king of Sardinia, had striven to shake off the Austrian yoke, but was beaten, 1849, at Novara. Heartbroken, he abdicated on the field of battle in favor of his son, Victor Emmanuel, duke of Savoy (grandfather of the present king of Italy), a man of simple tastes, who preferred mountaineering and hunting to the pomp of state. Italy was now at lowest ebb. But for Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi it might still be in semi-slavery to foreign power. But in 1859 Victor Emmanuel, refusing Austria's command to disarm his little kingdom, made an alliance with Napoleon III. Together at Solferina, Magenta and elsewhere they inflicted terrific defeats on Austria, and won the war, the great province of Lombardy being ceded to Sardinia, while Victor Emmanuel, in payment, turned over his own ancestral duchy of Savoy to France. The tide had turned. Other principalities—Bologna, Tuscany, Parma, Modena and Romagna (the last-named being one of the "papal states")—annexed themselves to Sardinia. The pope promptly excommunicated everyone concerned in the reform.

Garibaldi left his seclusion and, with 1,000 "red-shirt men," invaded Sicily. In less than three months he had freed the island. He was acclaimed a hero on his return to Italy, but refused all gifts and honors and went quietly back to his farm. The freeing of Sicily and lower Italy by Garibaldi caused the fall of the king of Naples, an oppressor and foe to liberty and lopped off more papal provinces. Thus by 1861 all Italy, with the exception of Venetia and the few remaining papal provinces, was a united kingdom under Victor Emmanuel's rule.

In 1866, when Prussia and Italy fought Austria, Venetia was ceded to Italy; and in 1870, when the Franco-Prussian war caused the withdrawal of French troops from Rome, Victor Emmanuel annexed the last of the papal states, guaranteeing spiritual independence to the pope and himself becoming first king of the free and united Italy.

Garibaldi, meantime, had won fresh fame by invading the Tyrol in the war of 1866, and had fought gallantly in the Franco-Prussian war. Still declining the office, ranks and honors tendered him, he returned to his island farm, where, crippled and broken in health, he died in 1882.

This man of the people was the central and most picturesque figure in the long struggle for Italian liberty, and was also the Nineteenth century's highest type of disinterested patriot.

Parisians Prefer Hats Which Expose One Eye

Boyish manners have gone with boyish fashions, and now Parisians prefer hats which expose one eye, an aid to flirtation.

Much millinery is worn with the brim cut away abruptly in front or turned back in such a way that one eye is hidden and the other heightened.

Occasionally there is a small flat bow of velvet just over the jog in the hat brim. One milliner holds back the brim with a small ostrich feather, which curls back over the crown of the hat.

However, nearly all of the dressmakers who are also milliners of importance show a few large velvet hats for winter.

Redfern not only shows big hats, but includes a tricorner shape which has attracted some attention. It is designed for wear with a gray velvet coat trimmed with gray fox. The hat is also gray velvet and rolls to a point in front. Small hats and big collars are the usual rule of the season. Redfern combines a big hat and a big fur collar.

Hats of stitched velvet promise to be among the most popular this winter. The forms are quite similar to the stitched taffetas of a season ago, with small brims, tailored crowns and narrow bands of the stitched velvet, which tie in a bow at the side.

For sports wear, shetland wool felt hats and matching wool hose are the latest word in style for exclusive European golf courses. The hats, in a variety of two-tone mixtures, have narrow brims. Beige and brown and dark blue and light blue, two shades of red, and dark and light green are much worn. Light weight kasha blouses with high collars are popular this season for the woman golfer.

Parisian Boutonniere Wee Cluster of Buds

The real Parisian boutonniere is a wee cluster of buds in different, harmoniously assembled colors. These are composed of all the Dresden flowers—in blue, pink, yellow, mauve, with touches of silver and gilt and little green leaves to form a border. These all have a fantastic, frosty surface that is very decorative. Glass flowers made to imitate the natural blossoms, and precious stones as well, are as finely conceived and put together as if they were the sapphires, emeralds, topaz and opals they so closely resemble. They have a decided charm, are very chic and in the best places very expensive. Nothing more poetic in flower ornaments has been designed than the single dogwood blossoms, both pink and white, made of some iridescent material that resembles mother-of-pearl.

Subtle Color Schemes

There is a revival of interest in artificial flowers for street wear. One of the most charming combinations consisted of a large bunch of violets dyed a pinky beige and worn with sheer silk stockings the exact shade of the flowers. These violets now come in a number of shades of beige and fawn and gray.

Cross-Stitched Slip-on Liked for Campus Wear

The newest of tricks in the sweater world, says the Woman's Home Companion, is to work a cross-stitch design on a plain knitted background to form a kind of all-over pattern. For instance the modernist effect of this smart sweater for a school or college girl is really achieved by taking big wool cross stitches in harmonizing shades on the mesh of the wool. A beige sweater with a design in shades of brown and orange is rather stunning; shades of bright and dark blue on a French blue ground are also good. Such a sweater should be worn with a skirt of plain color to match one of the tones of the sweater.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

Is He a Good Car-Driver?

Electrical Cuge

Is he conscientious and has he common sense? If his words get bigger in size as they go along, the writer is desirous of protecting others and giving his best in the interest of others. High d's and t's will be found in the writing of a person who is concerned with another's welfare. The writer of the low d may be cautious but it is due more to a desire for self-protection.

Angular writing is made by the mechanical person who feels for his machine. The more rounded the lettering, the more careless will the driver be about the care of his machine.

Clipped terminals and a clean looking, even script will usually indicate the writer who is considerate of both his car and fellow passengers. Loops in letters will not be so large as the good driver is so because he has his mind on his driving and will not take it off. The writer of large loops may have a big heart and not mean to abuse his car but his mind soars in the clouds and suddenly he finds himself off the road or about to climb a lamp post. T bars will be even in pressure and exact in place. System will be seen in the writing.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied

Garibaldi

A STOCKY, bearded man was arrested on a charge of so-called treason. He was Giuseppe Garibaldi, son of a poor Italian fisherman, and himself a sailor by occupation. In 1834, when only twenty-seven, he joined the "Young Italy" society, was implicated in a plot to free his country from the Austrian yoke, and was condemned to death.

"This ends your career, my friend," remarked one consolatory jailor.

"You are mistaken," retorted Garibaldi, coolly. "My destiny is not fulfilled. Italy's not yet free. I shall live."

He made good his words by escaping from prison. He found his way to South America, where he plunged at once into the warfare that convulsed that continent, and repeatedly won fame by his efforts in behalf of the weaker side. He was taken prisoner by the Brazilian government, escaped, eloped with a beautiful Creole, successively picked up a living as cattleman, ship broker and teacher of mathematics, organized an Italian legion and served as naval commander for Montevideo in the latter's war with Buenos Ayres. Then he returned to Italy and, raising a body of irregular troops, again harried the Austrians.

Italy was divided into a number of independent and semi-independent principalities, including a group of states under the direct temporal rule of the pope. But the northern part of the country was in Austria's hands, while nearly all of it was more or less under Austrian domination. Austria bullied and oppressed the hapless land cruelly. As a result, Mazzini and other patriots formed a horde of secret societies with the hope of freeing their downtrodden fatherland and joining its separate states into one strong union. In 1830, 1834 and at other times revolts sprang up, only to be crushed with an iron hand.

The Carbonari, "Young Italy" and similar patriotic leagues continued their efforts, and in 1848 Garibaldi and his fellow revolutionists captured Rome, forcing the pope to fly to Gaeta. They formed a republic in which Garibaldi and Mazzini were supreme. But Napoleon III (who had earlier pledged his support to the revolutionists) sent a French army to the pope's aid. Garibaldi gallantly held Rome against the stronger foe for thirty days, but was at last forced to evacuate the city. Again Garibaldi was forced to flee from Italy. He now came to New York, where he remained for over a year, working as a candle maker and living on Staten Island. Later he was captain of a Pacific merchantman. In 1854 he returned to Italy and bought a farm on the island of Caprera, off the Sardinian coast. But he was not allowed to remain long in seclusion.

Charles Albert, king of Sardinia, had striven to shake off the Austrian yoke, but was beaten, 1849, at Novara. Heartbroken, he abdicated on the field of battle in favor of his son, Victor Emmanuel, duke of Savoy (grandfather of the present king of Italy), a man of simple tastes, who preferred mountaineering and hunting to the pomp of state. Italy was now at lowest ebb. But for Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi it might still be in semi-slavery to foreign power. But in 1859 Victor Emmanuel, refusing Austria's command to disarm his little kingdom, made an alliance with Napoleon III. Together at Solferina, Magenta and elsewhere they inflicted terrific defeats on Austria, and won the war, the great province of Lombardy being ceded to Sardinia, while Victor Emmanuel, in payment, turned over his own ancestral duchy of Savoy to France. The tide had turned. Other principalities—Bologna, Tuscany, Parma, Modena and Romagna (the last-named being one of the "papal states")—annexed themselves to Sardinia. The pope promptly excommunicated everyone concerned in the reform.

Garibaldi left his seclusion and, with 1,000 "red-shirt men," invaded Sicily. In less than three months he had freed the island. He was acclaimed a hero on his return to Italy, but refused all gifts and honors and went quietly back to his farm. The freeing of Sicily and lower Italy by Garibaldi caused the fall of the king of Naples, an oppressor and foe to liberty and lopped off more papal provinces. Thus by 1861 all Italy, with the exception of Venetia and the few remaining papal provinces, was a united kingdom under Victor Emmanuel's rule.

In 1866, when Prussia and Italy fought Austria, Venetia was ceded to Italy; and in 1870, when the Franco-Prussian war caused the withdrawal of French troops from Rome, Victor Emmanuel annexed the last of the papal states, guaranteeing spiritual independence to the pope and himself becoming first king of the free and united Italy.

Garibaldi, meantime, had won fresh fame by invading the Tyrol in the war of 1866, and had fought gallantly in the Franco-Prussian war. Still declining the office, ranks and honors tendered him, he returned to his island farm, where, crippled and broken in health, he died in 1882.

This man of the people was the central and most picturesque figure in the long struggle for Italian liberty, and was also the Nineteenth century's highest type of disinterested patriot.

Parisians Prefer Hats Which Expose One Eye

Boyish manners have gone with boyish fashions, and now Parisians prefer hats which expose one eye, an aid to flirtation.

Much millinery is worn with the brim cut away abruptly in front or turned back in such a way that one eye is hidden and the other heightened.

Occasionally there is a small flat bow of velvet just over the jog in the hat brim. One milliner holds back the brim with a small ostrich feather, which curls back over the crown of the hat.

However, nearly all of the dressmakers who are also milliners of importance show a few large velvet hats for winter.

Redfern not only shows big hats, but includes a tricorner shape which has attracted some attention. It is designed for wear with a gray velvet coat trimmed with gray fox. The hat is also gray velvet and rolls to a point in front. Small hats and big collars are the usual rule of the season. Redfern combines a big hat and a big fur collar.

Hats of stitched velvet promise to be among the most popular this winter. The forms are quite similar to the stitched taffetas of a season ago, with small brims, tailored crowns and narrow bands of the stitched velvet, which tie in a bow at the side.

For sports wear, shetland wool felt hats and matching wool hose are the latest word in style for exclusive European golf courses. The hats, in a variety of two-tone mixtures, have narrow brims. Beige and brown and dark blue and light blue, two shades of red, and dark and light green are much worn. Light weight kasha blouses with high collars are popular this season for the woman golfer.

Parisian Boutonniere Wee Cluster of Buds

The real Parisian boutonniere is a wee cluster of buds in different, harmoniously assembled colors. These are composed of all the Dresden flowers—in blue, pink, yellow, mauve, with touches of silver and gilt and little green leaves to form a border. These all have a fantastic, frosty surface that is very decorative. Glass flowers made to imitate the natural blossoms, and precious stones as well, are as finely conceived and put together as if they were the sapphires, emeralds, topaz and opals they so closely resemble. They have a decided charm, are very chic and in the best places very expensive. Nothing more poetic in flower ornaments has been designed than the single dogwood blossoms, both pink and white, made of some iridescent material that resembles mother-of-pearl.

Subtle Color Schemes

There is a revival of interest in artificial flowers for street wear. One of the most charming combinations consisted of a large bunch of violets dyed a pinky beige and worn with sheer silk stockings the exact shade of the flowers. These violets now come in a number of shades of beige and fawn and gray.

Cross-Stitched Slip-on Liked for Campus Wear

The newest of tricks in the sweater world, says the Woman's Home Companion, is to work a cross-stitch design on a plain knitted background to form a kind of all-over pattern. For instance the modernist effect of this smart sweater for a school or college girl is really achieved by taking big wool cross stitches in harmonizing shades on the mesh of the wool. A beige sweater with a design in shades of brown and orange is rather stunning; shades of bright and dark blue on a French blue ground are also good. Such a sweater should be worn with a skirt of plain color to match one of the tones of the sweater.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

Is He a Good Car-Driver?

Electrical Eugo

Is he conscientious and has he common sense? If his words get bigger in size as they go along, the writer is desirous of protecting others and giving his best in the interest of others. High d's and t's will be found in the writing of a person who is concerned with another's welfare. The writer of the low d may be cautious but it is due more to a desire for self-protection.

Angular writing is made by the mechanical person who feels for his machine. The more rounded the lettering, the more careless will the driver be about the care of his machine.

Clipped terminals and a clean looking, even script will usually indicate the writer who is considerate of both his car and fellow passengers. Loops in letters will not be so large as the good driver is so because he has his mind on his driving and will not take it off. The writer of large loops may have a big heart and not mean to abuse his car but his mind soars in the clouds and suddenly he finds himself off the road or about to climb a lamp post. T bars will be even in pressure and exact in place. System will be seen in the writing.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)
